Yankee Invasion Forces Poised In Pacific

OPERATIONS IN EUROPE NOT TO SLOW JAP DRIVE

"Bigger And More Difficult Landings" In The Making, Marine General Says

COMING EVENTS RUMBLE

Tokyo Fears Americans Will Attempt Invasion Of Kurile Islands

WASHINGTON, May 18—American invasion forces are poised in the Pacific today for "bigger, and more difficult, landings than we have ever yet attempted."

That prediction came from Lieut. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Marine corps commander, and hero of the United States invasion of Guadalcanal in August, 1942.

"We now stand on the threshold of bigger, and more difficult, landings than we have ever yet attempted," Vandegrift said in a speech.

The fighting general added that "operations in Europe will in no way impair the pace, or the nature, of events to come in the Pacific."

Vandegrift's statement added emphasis to recent developments which pointed strongly toward large scale operations in the next phase of the war to crush Japan.

Rumble of Events

The rumblings of coming events have been echoed recently by the Tokyo radio, which has been warning its home listeners to boost war production, especially aircraft. In its latest broadcast the Jap radio expressed fear American forces may attempt a landing in the Kuriles, 700 miles north of Japan proper.

Except for the non-stop aerial offensive, the vast Central Pacific war zone has been comparatively quiet since the successful invasion of the Marshalls January 31.

Since that invasion, the mighty U. S. Pacific fleet has been busy blasting key Jap defenses at Truk, Saipan and Palau. Units also supported Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces in the "leap-frog" invasion of Hollandia, New Guinea.

The developing pattern of the American Pacific offensive in recent months assures the world that the next major move in that war zone will carry United States and Allied troops much closer to the Philippines and Japan itself.

In case the Japanese fleet decides to come out of hiding, any major invasion move by the United States may precipitate the greatest sea-air battle in history. Major units of the enemy fleet have been hiding since November, 1942.

JOE E. BROWN PAYS FOR TOUR

Comedian Responsible For Lightning Burdens Of Yankee Fighters

NEW YORK, May 18—Joe E. Brown, the movie comedian, can make them laugh, but he himself found nothing to laugh at when, in the course of a tour of the South and Southwest Pacific, entertaining American fighting men he found one island hospital with a single greasy deck of playing cards for the entire 2,400 patients to use.

Nor did he smile when he discovered, in the course of his tour, thousands of other boys in the mosquito-infested jungles in need of some means of recreation by which they might forget the horrors of war.

The result of Joe E. Brown's discoveries was the organizing, on August 1, 1943, of All-Pacific Recreation Fund, which already has shipped more than $50,000 worth of recreational equipment to American boys stationed in off-shore Pacific bases, and which now seeks funds to supply $250,000 worth of such equipment in 1944.

Edward W. Cochrane, newspaper and magazine writer, who is a member of the fund's board of directors, told about it today.

Cochrane is in New York in the course of a nationwide tour, during which he is consulting officials of national sports organizations, arranging baseball, boxing, racing, football and golf matches for the benefit of the fund.

"Sports and games are great morale-builders," he pointed out, "in that they take the boys' minds (Continued on Page Two)"

100 NEEDED TO MEET QUOTA OF BLOOD DONORS

Unless an additional 100 persons register to donate blood Friday, the sixth visit of the Franklin county mobile blood unit to Pickaway county will be a failure.

An urgent appeal was issued Thursday by Hal Dean, chairman of the Red Cross Blood Donors service committee, to Pickaway county to call the Red Cross rooms, phone 408, or Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, chairman of registrations at 258 and register now.

All previous unit visits have been very successful. If this one is a failure future scheduled visits probably will be called off.

FREEDOM OF AIR DISCARDED AS POSTWAR IDEA

No Binding Commitments Made At English And American Parley

BRITISH CONCEDE POINT

Exchange Agreements To Permit Flying Over Foreign Lands

WASHINGTON, May 18—Aviation experts who participated in the recent Anglo-American discussions in London declared today that freedom of the air, as popularly understood, definitely has been discarded as a principle of post war civil aviation.

The assertion was made in an effort to clear the atmosphere between the State department and congress where the senate commerce committee became alarmed over reports that Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle had sponsored freedom of the air in the London conversations.

The committee asked the department for comment on reports that a world plan for aviation had been drawn up in London, but Sen. Tom Connally (D) Tex., chairman of the senate foreign relations committee declared no binding commitments in the field of international aviation have been made by the American government.

Connally, who conferred with state officials on the foreign negotiations of Berle, said "if there is a treaty, the senate has to be a part of it."

British Give In

It was admitted, however, that Berle took a position much closer to freedom of the air than the British, and before the conversations were over, the British had swung toward the American position.

But actual freedom of the air—in which any air line of any nationality is permitted to use the air over any country—was promptly discarded as a policy which would bring chaos.

The system which Berle stood for, according to the official explanation made today, was one in (Continued on Page Two)

FRANCIS TEETS HALTS ASSAULT BY HUN PATROL

Francis Teets, of Circleville, almost single handed broke up a German attack on an American position in Italy and because of his heroic action has received the Silver Star.

According to Stars and Stripes, the service man's overseas newspaper, Teets was manning a machine gun when a patrol of 30 Germans approached. Teets opened fire, but his machine gun jammed. He turned and ran 30 yards through a hail of enemy bullets, obtained a Browning automatic rifle, returned through heavy fire and at his original position turned the gun on the Germans. When the Nazis fled they left behind four dead and several wounded men. Hand grenades and concentrated fire had failed to shake Teets from his position and his commanding officers said that his bravery was almost entirely responsible for breaking up the attack.

Teets, who is a private, is a son of Mrs. Mabel Teets, Hayward avenue. He entered service March 23. Previously to induction he was employed on the farm of Dr. A. D. Blackburn near Blanchester.

Mail will reach Private Teets if addressed PFC. Francis Teets, 35635304, Co. A, 15th Infantry, APO 3, c/o Postmaster, New York.

BOMBAY HEIRESS DIES IN RIVER

Finding Of Valsa Matthai Ends Nation-Wide Hunt For Beautiful Co-Ed

NEW YORK, May 18—The two-month widespread search for Valsa Matthai, beautiful Bombay heiress, came to an end today when her body was taken from the dark, swirling waters of the Hudson river at Yonkers.

Although there were no marks of violence on the decomposed body of the beautiful, 22-year-old Columbia university student, and Dr. Edwin M. Huntington, assistant medical examiner of the Westchester county said he would perform an autopsy. Acting Police Capt. John J. Cronin, Jr., of the New York missing persons bureau said, "the case is not closed, insofar as our department is concerned."

Dr. Huntington said he believed an autopsy would not reveal anything not already disclosed. There were no signs of violence, he said, and it would be impossible to detect any traces of poison in a body which had been in the river so long.

The girl's disappearance from International house on New York's Riverside drive last March 20, during an early morning snowstorm precipitated one of the most widespread hunts in Metropolitan police annals.

Identity of the body was established chiefly through numbers on the wristwatch worn by Miss Matthai, who was the daughter of John Matthai, head of the Tata Chemical Company of Bombay, which is affiliated with the Tata Iron and Steel Company of New York, LTD.

TRUMAN URGES RETURN OF FDR TO WHITE HOUSE

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 18—Sen. Harry Truman (D) Missouri, was on record today as favoring "reelection of the present leadership." He said:

"I favor the reelection of President Roosevelt because I firmly believe it would be most unwise to change at this time. We must not forget we have more than 11,000,000 men in service scattered throughout the world.

"Our military leaders, men like Marshall, Eisenhower, Clark, King, Spatz, and Stilwell are the best in the world. Another President might change his chief of staff or make other promotions."

INVASION TO BE BIGGEST BATTLE IN ALL HISTORY

"Bombers Of Tomorrow" To Be Among New Weapons Used By Allies

FORTRESSES "OBSOLETE"

Newer Types Of Fighter Planes Will Add To Woe Of Hitler Hordes

NEW YORK, May 18—The invasion of the European continent will be the most devastating battle in history, with the introduction of the newest and most deadly weapons ever devised including "the bombers of tomorrow, now coming off the assembly lines."

In a joint report by the nation's military, naval and marine aviation commanders in Aerospace, International aviation yearbook, America's military air leaders revealed today some new facts about the newest U. S. warplanes.

"When they go into operation," said Brig. Gen. Caleb V. Haynes, commander of the First Bomber Command, "today's bombers will become obsolescent from the standpoint of speed, altitude, range, bombloads and other characteristics."

"These super-planes will cruise at an altitude of more than 35,000 feet, at a speed in excess of 350 miles per hour, with a bomb load exceeding anything carried by our bombers today."

Maj. Gen. Frank O'D Hunter, commander of the First Fighter Command and former commander of the fighter branch of the Eighth Air Force in England, revealed that much more extensive use is now possible with newer types of fighter plane.

"Supercharged engines carry fighters to new altitudes," he said. "Increased horsepower has advanced their speed. They can be equipped with heavier bombs than ever before."

"The installation of more guns, up to 37-mm cannon, has intensified their fire-power. Heavier armament, bullet-proof gas tanks, and sturdier all-round construction give greater protection to the men who fly them."

Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the U. S. Air Forces, said that "in the tremendous battles over the roofless fortress of Europe, in the decisive battles of the last year from Salerno to New Guinea, air power played a dominant role."

American planes are still superior to those of the enemy, said Maj. Gen. Clayton L. Bissell, deputy chief of staff, military intelligence division, USA. In fact, said Gen. Bissell, "we have been able to stay several jumps ahead of the Japanese and at least one jump ahead of the Germans."

NAZI TORPEDO ENDS LIFE OF LOCAL SOLDIER

Mrs. Herschel Hinton, Pickaway township was notified Wednesday by the War department that her husband, Corporal Hinton had died November 27. Mrs. Hinton had previously been notified that her husband was aboard the transport that had been torpedoed in the European theatre of war and later that he had been missing since November 26.

The last telegram said that it was an official notice that Corporal Hinton who had been reported missing on November 26 had died on November 27, and that a letter would follow.

Corporal Herschel V. Hinton was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hinton of Pickaway township. Besides his wife, who was Miss Evelyn Pierce, and his parents, he is survived by three sisters, Miss Kathleen Hinton, a teacher in the Pickaway township school, Miss Dorothy, an employee of the John W. Eshelman and Sons company and Miss Bernadine Hinton, Columbus.

Corporal Hinton entered the service in November, 1942 and was trained at Seymour Johnson Field, Charlotte, North Carolina.

PRESENT EVENTS CAST A SHADOW

THOSE WORRIED LOOKS on the faces of Hitler and his Air Marshal Hermann Goering (top) are undoubtedly prompted by the present and expected events on the continent of Europe. Taken from a captured German film and incorporated in March of Time's "Underground Report," the photo shows the Nazi bigwigs in what may be termed their "escape" train; the car in which they are believed to leave Berlin every night to duck Allied bombings. At bottom are a number of trains that didn't get away from the many tons of British and American bombs now splattering enemy rail centers and installations. (International)

American Sub Sneaks Under Noses of Japs; Saves 22 Downed Airmen

BY JOHN R. HENRY

PEARL HARBOR, May 18—Twenty-two Navy airmen, plucked from death's door by a U. S. submarine, gave heartfelt thanks today to the captain of the undersea craft, Lieut. Commander Richard Hetherington O'Kane of San Rafael, Cal., who dared Japanese shore batteries on a thrilling rescue mission during the mighty carrier assault against the Jap bastion at Truk April 29-30.

O'Kane, captain of the U. S. S. Tang, swept under the very noses of the Japs and braved the dangers of jagged coral reefs to pick up the wingless airmen who were downed at sea.

The Tang, one of the fleet's newest submarines, came in from patrol with her innards jammed with thankful fliers, one of whom—Lt. (j. g.) John A. Burns of Wynnewood, Pa.—played a role almost as heroic as the submarines, spotting and picking up fellow aviators until he also was stranded in the water.

So effective and dramatic was the Tang's performance that the navy lifted the veil of silence and secrecy shrouding submarine operations to permit blonde, 33-year-old O'Kane to recount his ship's two days of harrowing action.

Present to substantiate his story and praise the submarines were a trio of air-minded men who now are more than convinced that submarines have their points. They were Comdr. A. R. Matter, Butte, Mont.; Lt. (jg) Robert F. Kanze, Freehold, N. J., and Lieutenant Burns.

American, French Troops Capture Outposts Of Last Rome Defense

YANKS HEAD INTO ITRI

Clark In Striking Distance Of Gaeta—Naval Ships Pound Huns

BULLETIN

NAPLES, May 18—A slashing Allied thrust to flank the Hitler line from the rear was reported in battlefield dispatches today, with bloody fighting under way in widespread sectors.

By International News Service

Allied Fifth and Eighth Army assault troops lost no time today in opening the battle for the Adolf Hitler line below Rome, after smashing the Gustav line and enveloping the main bastion of Cassino which the enemy claimed to have abandoned.

No sooner had the headquarters of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson announced that "the battle for the Gustav line is drawing to a close and the battle for the Adolf Hitler line about to commence," than front dispatches told of initial success in the latter assault.

American and French troops of the Fifth Army captured several outposts in the Hitler line of defenses. The French captured Esperia, key to the line at the base of Mt. D'Oro after fierce fighting; the polis then drove onward toward Montecelli.

Further south, the French forces drove through the Ausonia defile for two or three miles and occupied 2,200-foot Mount Lago and Mount Martino, thus bringing the Nazi Itri-Pico supply route under artillery fire. This road links the Liri valley and the enemy coastal defenses.

Americans Advance

Americans of the Fifth Army headed into Itri, along the Appian way four and a half miles northwest of Formia, and came within striking distance of the latter Gulf of Gaeta port itself. Supporting both the French and American drives were naval vessels which hit the enemy with 3,000 shells in six days.

In the Liri valley, where the last remaining Nazi positions in the Gustav line were breached to a depth of three and one-half miles, British and Polish troops overran the last defenses around Cassino. The German DNB agency said that the bomb-shattered town was evacuated without interference from the Allies, but an Eighth Army pincer movement had made fall of the city only a matter of brief time.

Supply Line Cut

The Via Cassilina, main supply line to Cassino, was severed two miles southwest of the town, while Polish troops seized two strategic hill features and closed on the town and Monastery Hill. On this latter height is situated the ruined abbey of St. Benedict, which the Germans had converted into a fortress.

Besides the Allied warships which supported the land advance, light, medium and fighter-bombers of the Mediterranean air force added their weight to the Fifth and Eighth Army drives. Troops, gun positions and communication lines in the battle areas were strafed and bombed.

Heavy bombers followed up Tuesday's assault by medium bombers which struck the ports of Piombino and San Stefano in Italy and Porto Ferraro on Elba. "Good results" were achieved in (Continued on Page Two)

Pickaway county's jail is vacant for the first time in 14 years. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said that when he took office in 1930 the jail held several prisoners and never has been without them until today. Available county records do not show just how long ago the jail was last empty.

"Bigger And More Difficult Landings" In The Making, Marine General Says

COMING EVENTS RUMBLE

Tokyo Fears Americans Will Attempt Invasion Of Kurile Islands

WASHINGTON, May 18—American invasion forces are poised in the Pacific today for "bigger, and more difficult, landings than we have ever yet attempted."

That prediction came from Lieut. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Marine corps commander, and hero of the United States invasion of Guadalcanal in August, 1942.

"We now stand on the threshold of bigger, and more difficult, landings than we have ever yet attempted," Vandegrift said in a speech.

The fighting general added that "operations in Europe will in no way impair the pace, or the nature, of events to come in the Pacific."

Vandegrift's statement added emphasis to recent developments which pointed strongly toward large scale operations in the next phase of the war to crush Japan.

Rumble of Events

The rumblings of coming events have been echoed recently by the Tokyo radio, which has been warning its home listeners to boost war production, especially aircraft. In its latest broadcast the Jap radio expressed fear American forces may attempt a landing in the Kuriles, 700 miles north of Japan proper.

The developing pattern of the American Pacific offensive in recent months assures the world that the next major move in that war zone will carry United States and Allied troops much closer to the Philippines and Japan itself.

In case the Japanese fleet decides to come out of hiding, any major invasion move by the United States may precipitate the greatest sea-air battle in history. Major units of the enemy fleet have been hiding since November, 1942.

"These super-planes will cruise at an altitude of more than 35,000 feet, at a speed in excess of 350 miles per hour, with a bomb load exceeding anything carried by our bombers today."

Maj. Gen. Frank O'D Hunter, commander of the First Fighter Command and former commander of the fighter branch of the Eighth Air Force in England, revealed that much more extensive use is now possible with newer types of fighter planes.

"Supercharged engines carry fighters to new altitudes," he said. "Increased horsepower has advanced their speed. They can be equipped with heavier bombs than ever before."

"The installation of more guns, up to 37-mm cannon, has intensified their fire-power. Heavier armament, bullet-proof gas tanks, and sturdier all-round construction give greater protection to the men who fly them..."

Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the U. S. Air Forces, said that "in the tremendous battles over the roofless fortresses of Europe, in the decisive battles of the last year from Salerno to New Guinea, air power played a dominant role."

American planes are still superior to those of the enemy, said Maj. Gen. Clayton L. Bissell, deputy chief of staff, military intelligence division, USA. In fact, said Gen. Bissell, "we have been able to stay several jumps ahead of the Japanese and at least one jump ahead of the Germans."

NAZI TORPEDO ENDS LIFE OF LOCAL SOLDIER

Mrs. Herschel Hinton, Pickaway township was notified Wednesday by the War department that her husband, Corporal Hinton had died November 27. Mrs. Hinton had previously been notified that her husband was aboard the transport that had been torpedoed in the European theatre of war and later that he had been missing since November 26.

The last telegram said that it was an official notice that Corporal Hinton who had been reported missing on November 26 had died on November 27, and that a letter would follow.

Corporal Herschel V. Hinton was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hinton of Pickaway township. Besides his wife, who was Miss Evelyn Pierce, and his parents, he is survived by three sisters. Miss Kathleen Hinton, a teacher in the Pickaway township school, Miss Dorothy, an employee of the John W. Eshelman and Sons company and Miss Bernadine Hinton, Columbus.

Corporal Hinton entered the service in November, 1942 and was trained at Seymour Johnson Field, Charlotte, North Carolina.

PRESENT EVENTS CAST A SHADOW

THOSE WORRIED LOOKS on the faces of Hitler and his Air Marshal Hermann Goering (top) are undoubtedly prompted by the present and expected events on the continent of Europe. Taken from a captured German film and incorporated in March of Time's "Underground Report," the photo shows the Nazi bigwigs in what may be termed their "escape" train; the car in which they are believed to leave Berlin every night to duck Allied bombings. At bottom are a number of trains that didn't get away from the many tons of British and American bombs now splattering enemy rail centers and installations. (International)

American Sub Sneaks Under Noses of Japs; Saves 22 Downed Airmen

BY JOHN R. HENRY

PEARL HARBOR, May 18—Twenty-two Navy airmen, plucked from death's door by a U. S. submarine, gave heartfelt thanks today to the captain of the undersea craft, Lieut. Commander Richard Hetherington O'Kane of San Rafael, Cal., who dared Japanese shore batteries on a thrilling rescue mission during the mighty carrier assault against the Jap bastion at Truk April 29-30.

O'Kane, captain of the U. S. S. Tang, swept under the very noses of the Japs and braved the dangers of jagged coral reefs to pick up the wingless airmen who were downed at sea.

The Tang, one of the fleet's newest subs, came in from patrol with her innards jammed with thankful fliers, one of whom—Lt. (j. g.) John A. Burns of Wynnewood, Pa.—played a role almost as heroic as the submarine, spotting and picking up fellow aviators until he also was stranded in the water.

So effective and dramatic was the Tang's performance that the navy lifted the veil of silence and secrecy shrouding submarine operations to permit blonde, 33-year-old O'Kane to recount his ship's two days of harrowing action.

Present to substantiate his story and praise the submarines were a trio of air-minded men who now are more than convinced that submarines have their points. They were Comdr. A. R. Matter, Butte, Mont.; Lt. (jg) Robert F. Kanze, Freehold, N. J., and Lieutenant Burns.

ALLIES START DRIVE AGAINST HITLER'S LINE

American, French Troops Capture Outposts Of Last Rome Defense

YANKS HEAD INTO ITRI

Clark In Striking Distance Of Gaeta—Naval Ships Pound Huns

BULLETIN

NAPLES, May 18—A slashing Allied thrust to flank the Hitler line from the rear was reported in battlefront dispatches today, with bloody fighting under way in widespread sectors.

By International News Service Allied Fifth and Eighth Army assault troops lost no time today in opening the battle for the Adolf Hitler line below Rome, after smashing the Gustav line and enveloping the main bastion of Cassino which the enemy claimed to have abandoned.

No sooner had the headquarters of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson announced that "the battle for the Gustav line is drawing to a close and the battle for the Adolf Hitler line about to commence," than front dispatches told of initial success in the latter assault.

American and French troops of the Fifth Army captured several outposts in the Hitler line of defenses. The French captured Capua, key to the line at the base of Mt. D'Oro after fierce fighting; the polis then drove onward toward Montecelli.

Further south, the French forces drove through the Ausonia defile for two or three miles and occupied 2,200-foot Mount Lago and Mount Martino, thus bringing the Nazi Itri-Pico supply route under artillery fire. This road links the Liri valley and the enemy coastal defenses.

Americans Advance

Americans of the Fifth Army headed into Itri, along the Appian way four and a half miles northwest of Formia, and came within striking distance of the latter Gulf of Gaeta port itself. Supporting both the French and American drives were naval vessels which hit the enemy with 3,000 shells in six days.

In the Liri valley, where the last remaining Nazi positions in the Gustav line were breached to a depth of three and one-half miles, British and Polish troops overran the last defenses around Cassino. The German DNB agency said that the bomb-shattered town was evacuated without interference from the Allies, but an Eighth Army pincer movement had made fall of the city only a matter of brief time.

Supply Line Cut

The Via Cassina, main supply line to Cassino, was severed two miles southwest of the town, while Polish troops seized two strategic hill features and closed on the town and Monastery Hill. On this latter height is situated the ruined abbey of St. Benedict, which the Germans had converted into a fortress.

Besides the Allied warships which supported the land advance, light, medium and fighter-bombers of the Mediterranean air force added their weight to the Fifth and Eighth Army drives. Troops, gun positions and communication lines in the battle areas were strafed and bombed.

Heavy bombers followed up Tuesday's assault by medium bombers which struck the ports of Pionbino and San Stefano in Italy and Porto Ferraro on Elba. "Good results" were achieved in (Continued on Page Two)

COUNTY'S JAIL VACANT FIRST TIME IN YEARS

Pickaway county's jail is vacant for the first time in 14 years. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said that when he took office in 1930 the jail held several prisoners and never has been without them until today. Available county records do not show just how long ago the jail was last empty.

Yesterday's assaults, which came on Ancona and Frosinone, Romania.

The German DNB agency said that American planes attacked the Balkans, "including Romania," today to touch off fierce sky combat between the raiders and Nazi interceptors.

No official reports were available of operations by British-based bombers, although London monitors said Nazi radios in France and Denmark failed to transmit regular programs this morning. This radio blackout is usual when Allied raiders are over the continent.

The Russian air force, though continued its campaign against German communication lines behind the northern Russo-German front. Two rail junctions in old Poland, and a third near the former Polish frontier were blasted.

Things were still going adversely for the Japs, both in the Yunnan province of China and in North-Central Burma. Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill's forces, known as "Merrill's Marauders," were officially revealed to have driven 600 miles toward Myitkyna, slaughtering upwards of 2,000 Japs en route.

The Myitkyna rail and river terminus of the Myitkyna-Mandalay railroad was brought under siege. Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters revealed. The admiral's communique came shortly after American Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell announced that his Chinese forces on the Salween river front had captured the southern airdrome at Myitkyna.

PARTY CHIEFS TO ORGANIZE AT CAPITAL MAY 22

COLUMBUS, May 18.—Both the Republican and Democratic state central committees elected at the May 9 primary will meet in Columbus Monday to organize their forces for the coming campaign.

With only nine changes in its member roster, the Republican committee, meeting at noon, will go through the motions of electing itself as the state executive committee, and then re-elect Ed D. Schorr as joint chairman. The party is content to move along under Schorr's guidance.

Not so with the Democrats, however. Finally fed up with the internal bickering which have kicked the party into a state of semi-consciousness in the past few years, the Democrats plan to clean house, streamline their party leadership under the single hand of present Central Committee Chairman Albert A. Horstman of Dayton, and shatter tradition by naming a national committeeman and committeewoman in advance of the national convention.

For not only will the central committee meet Monday evening, but the slate of delegates to the national convention will hold its organizational dinner also. The delegates are nominally pledged to State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, seeking re-election, but actually they are on the fourth term bandwagon of President Roosevelt.

American Sub Sneaks Under Noses of Japs; Saves 22 Downed Airmen

Tang's "passenger manifest" on the return cruise from Truk were Lt. (jg) Robert T. Barber, Rockville Center, L. I., and Scott Scammell and Yardley Bricks, Count, Pa.

"We approached the Truk lagoon and surfaced April 29 because there were plenty of our planes overhead," said O'Kane, who revealed that the Tang was not once subjected to attack by Japanese airmen.

Directed By Planes

Planes directed the submarine southwest of Ollan island in the middle of the afternoon to a point where three fliers were spotted paddling yellow rafts toward a reef inside the lagoon.

These three—Lt. Scammell and his crew of Gendron and Gemmell—were the first recipients of the Tang's hospitality. They had been in the water five hours before their rescue.

Then the Tang was informed that another raft had been sighted inside the reef and pilots still in the air, O'Kane related, "seemed disgusted with us because we didn't crawl right across the reef like a lizard."

A short time later the Tang was told that another raft had been sighted 30 miles away in the vicinity of Kuop islands. En route to this designated spot in the ocean and submarine passed so close to Ollan that O'Kane opened up against enemy positions with the Tang's deck gun.

"But we didn't have any more luck until the next day—and then business really picked up," said O'Kane.

Called To Ollan

O'Kane was summoned again to the vicinity of Ollan where the Tang picked up Knaze and two others, and the sub skipper met Burns for the first time.

Knaze, a raw-boned fighter pilot, explained that he had been shot down the previous day, paddled through the lagoon and crossed the reef in darkness.

Burns, 25, a pink-cheeked Irishman who attended St. Joseph's college in Philadelphia and planned to study for the priesthood, landed and picked up the hapless trio and waited until the Tang came alongside to take them aboard.

Burns and a radioman took off again despite the heavy sea and just as the Tang's quartermaster saw another carrier plane spinning into the water.

While Knaze explained that he had been more concerned with escaping from Truk than being drowned, the submarine plowed toward the position of the new victim—Commander Matter of a torpedo bomber carrier group.

Matter and Crewman Lenahan and A. J. Thompson were surprised to be rescued only 25 minutes after anti-aircraft fire had felled their plane.

"We had already planned a course to New Guinea," said Matter. "I couldn't believe we could be picked up so fast anywhere except in the newspapers."

Rescuers Continue

After Matter's rescue the Tang again heard from Burns, who had set down his pontoons "Kingfisher" to pick up more fliers. He had sighted three rafts containing fallen birdmen and while the submarine was en route to take them aboard fighters overhead directed the Tang to change course and rescue Lt. Harry E. Hill of Minnesota, whose position was more precarious as he was stranded on a reef.

The planes overhead then spied a flier without a raft, dropped him a rubber boat and called the Tang.

When Lt. James Cole of Texas came aboard he was "the most appreciative," said O'Kane, "because he had been without a raft and he nearly drowned."

After this twin rescue O'Kane steered a course to find Burns—and when he located him Burns had his plane's wings and fuselage covered with humanity.

The rush of the swells, however, smashed the tail of the plane so Burns was unable to take off again. Consequently, he and Radioman Gill also had to be picked up by the Tang, which sent the hapless "Kingfisher" to the bottom with gunfire.

"That was more than Burns wanted to see," said O'Kane in telling how the daring rescue flier went below deck when the order was given to sink his plane.

Still More Work

The Tang's work, however, was still unfinished despite the approach of darkness. From the conning tower where the navigator, Lt. Comdr. Murray B. Frazer, of Gettysburg, Pa., had all but contracted "acute jitters" searching for a path about the reefs, a lookout sighted a brilliant shaft of light from a Very signal.

In the gathering dusk, O'Kane

ordered the Tang to move in the direction of the signal and he eventually found Lt. Donald Kirkpatrick of Illinois and Ordnanceman Richard Bentley of California "the coolest shot down fliers I've ever seen."

Kirkpatrick, who had been shot up five times and once previously shot down by anti-aircraft fire, told O'Kane he was "making no bones about cruising eleven hundred miles to New Guinea."

O'Kane remarked that aviators "have sizeable appetites, but fortunately he had plenty of food in the ice box."

The sub skipper put Commander Matter at work as the navigator and ordered the other fliers to stand watches.

"We needed bunk space and had to sleep in shifts," he explained, "but I believe they all were glad enough to do that."

Matter admitted he enjoyed this, his first overseas cruise during his entire navy career, but he guessed he would "still rather be a flat top flier."

After recounting the details of the dramatic rescues, O'Kane's story drifted back into the terminology of the "silent service."

"We carried out a routine patrol," he said, "and returned to base."

55,000 RETURNING TO WAR JOBS IN DETROIT PLANTS

DETROIT, May 18.—Fifty-five thousand workers, made idle by the strike of 3,500 members of the Foreman's Association of America, started streaming back to Detroit's war plants today.

Stung by charges of national war leaders that their strike was one of the most "severe setbacks in aviation history," the foremen, in six chapter meetings last night, voted almost unanimously to return to work today.

The decision to terminate the 20-day-old strike followed a back-to-work directive issued by Robert H. Keys, president of the FAA, after a conference with government officials in Washington.

No estimate of when the plants might resume full production was available. Workers affected by the strike were ordered to report for their regular shifts where further instructions would await them.

The Packard Motor Company, where 35,000 workers are out, announced that all departments, except four, will start work at 7:30 this evening. Production in the other departments will be resumed Friday morning and evening.

Announcements were expected today from the other plants affected by the strike—Briggs Manufacturing Company, Hudson Motor Car, Murray Corporation of America, Aeronautical Products Company and Gar Wood Industries.

Both the British and American delegations agreed that some sort of international civil aviation authority should be established, but there was a wide difference between them as to the powers it should exercise.

The British urged an authority with power to establish routes, fixed rates, admit or reject member companies, and generally manage the world's civil aviation as firmly as the civil aeronautics board manages the airlines of the United States.

But the American delegation flatly opposed giving the agency such powers, and insisted it have control only in technical matters such as radio, lighting, and traffic control.

This would leave private airlines free to compete for the world's business, instead of being bound by the rates and schedules of the international authority.

The success of this project, in the London conversations, gave rise to Lord Beaverbrook's comment in the house of lords that the British had come around to Berle's project for freedom of the air.

But officials emphasized that this was merely the sort of freedom of competition which United States' airlines wished to enjoy, and in which they expect to be able to surpass foreign competition.

The senate commerce subcommittee, which is seeking to develop an American international aviation policy, has now ended private hearings. Sen. Josiah Bailey (D) N. C., chairman of the commerce committee, said efforts will be made to develop a world policy.

Bailey said the state department could not affect a world aviation program without congressional sanction and disclosed the subcommittee will confer with state officials on forming such a policy.

which governments would exchange agreements permitting their respective airlines freedom of transit and "technical landing" in other countries.

Under this system, for example, a Canadian air line would be permitted to operate planes across the United States, enroute to South America, and would be permitted to land for refueling, but not to pick up or discharge passengers.

And reciprocally, United States' airlines would be permitted to cross Canada with the same privileges and restrictions.

JOE E. BROWN PAYS FOR TOUR

off the war, aid them physically, and turn the pages of their memories back to the days when they engaged in clean sports at home.

"If we give our youngsters at the fighting fronts a chance to play and relax when they are back from the foxholes on the fighting fronts, they will be better able physically and mentally to bring this war to a successful conclusion, and quickly."

The fund which, he emphasized, is not only for boys who came from the Pacific area, but from all parts of the country, has sent out 40,000 decks of playing cards.

Among its other shipments were: 2,400 softballs; 245 basketballs; 203 footballs; 147 water polo balls; 277 volleyballs; 194 soccer balls; 185 sets of boxing gloves; 107 medicine balls; 216 horseshoe sets; 1,450 sets of games, including dominoes, cribbage, checkers, darts and bingo; and $8,000 worth of fishing equipment.

The boys in the Pacific area also have been receiving 7,000 copies each week of "The Sporting News," a sports paper published in St. Louis.

"A priest, serving as a chaplain, wrote us," said Cochrane, "that his copy of 'The Sporting News' had been passed around the hospital so much that it was worn out before it got back to him. That hospital now receives fifteen copies."

The chaplain also wrote that every boy there was anxious to have the major leagues continue so that they could get the eagerly-awaited baseball news out there."

Brown, Cochrane, and other fund directors have received thousands of letters from chaplains and fighting men expressing appreciation of the sports equipment. They learned that on Guadalcanal, 12 softball teams have been formed, including one of army and navy nurses, and that the latter bat a men's team.

Cochrane proudly disclosed that during the first six months of operation the fund, with headquarters at 9010 Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles, used 97.9 percent of all money collected for athletic equipment, with only 2.1 percent used for operating expenses.

Her friends became alarmed when they had not seen her for 24 hours, but news of her disappearance was concealed for six days before the police received the alarm. Then followed one of the most comprehensive searches ever undertaken by New York authorities.

They scanned every foot of International house, drained five large tanks atop the building and sifted 150 tons of coal.

They searched nearby vacant houses and dragged the Hudson river over a wide area. In addition to the police, FBI agents, representatives of the state department and private detectives hired by the family joined in the hunt, which extended to California.

HARRY TOPOLOSKY HELD PRISONER BY GERMANS

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Topolosky, Columbus, former Circleville residents, have received word that their son, Harry Topolosky, who was reported missing in action in the European theatre of war, is now a prisoner of war in Germany.

Topolosky had been known to have been in Italy. A letter to his parents stated that he had landed there February 14. The War Department notified his parents that he was taken prisoner February 17.

He is a nephew of William Topolosky, manager of the local Sons of Grail.

ABNER GRIFFEY BACK AFTER TWO YEARS OF WAR

Sergeant Abner Griffey (Lt. Abner) former proofreader on The Circleville Herald, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Griffey, Pearl street, is home after spending more than two years in overseas service.

Abner is wearing three stripes and says he would have been a top sergeant if he would have waited a few weeks. But the temptation to come home was too great.

Volunteering for service in April, 1941, after being turned down by the Navy because he was too light, he has been in Australia, New Caledonia, on Guadalcanal, in the Fiji's and on Bougainville. Asked if he had gotten any Japs, he replied "not directly, but indirectly, plenty." His job is not firing a gun, but helping direct fire.

Sgt. Griffey arrived in Circleville, Wednesday and using his own expression "was overcome with joy." He is about the same shade as the natives of the Fiji's and was planning on eating his first home cooked meal in a long time where he said there would be ample butter at least. He is very thin, as a result of malaria. He brings good news to the relatives of Circleville men who are in the Pacific area, saying all are well and looking forward to their return. Among those who were with him are John Jenkins, Richard Smalley, William Friece, Ralph Friley, Robert Trimble and Mace Brown.

He will report to Camp Butler, Durham, N. C., in three weeks.

CARL CRABLE DIES AT UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL

Carl Crable, 53, Maplewood Ave., died in University Hospital, Columbus, Wednesday. He was a native of Pickaway county and was reared on the Isaac Hoffman farm in Washington township.

Mr. Crable is survived by a widow, who was Miss Nettie Huff, two sons, Kermit E. and Earl William, both of whom are serving with the Armed Forces, and a daughter, Nettie Mae, at home.

Funeral service, which will be held at the Deffenbaugh chapel, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, will be conducted by the Rev. C. A. Way, of the Nazarene church. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

The body will be taken to the residence, 718 Maplewood Ave., Friday where friends may call.

MOTORIST FINED

Forrest W. Storts, 27, South Court street, was fined $10 and costs in Justice of Peace court, Chillicothe, Wednesday for passing over the yellow center line in Route 23 near Chillicothe. He was arrested by the state highway patrol.

CHICAGO, May 18.—There is no refuge in the United States from the common cold, Dr. Harold S. Diehl, dean of medical schools at the University of Minnesota, declared today.

Dr. Diehl, in a lecture at the University of Illinois college of medicine, displayed charts indicating the prevalence of colds in Chicago, Boston, Columbus, O., Washington, D. C., Berkeley, Cal., and New Orleans. He commented: "You will note that these charts refute the commonly held belief of 'Oh, if I only could go to California, or some other state, I never would have colds.' The hills and valleys of prevalence in these cities chosen at random are so similar that the charts almost could be substituted for each other."

Yesterday's assaults, which came on Ancona and Frosinone.

Romania Hit
The German DNB agency said that American planes attacked the Balkans, "including Romania," today to touch off fierce sky combat between the raiders and Nazi interceptors.

No official reports were available of operations by British-based bombers, although London monitors said Nazi radios in France and Denmark failed to transmit regular programs this morning. This radio blackout is usual when Allied raiders are over the continent.

The Russian air force, though continued its campaign against German communication lines behind the northern Russo-German front. Two rail junctions in old Poland, and a third near the former Polish frontier were blasted.

Things were still going adversely for the Japs, both in the Yunnan province of China and in North-Central Burma. Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill's forces, known as "Merrill's Marauders," were officially revealed to have driven 600 miles toward Myitkyna, slaughtering upwards of 2,000 Japs en route.

The Myitkyna rail and river terminus of the Myitkyna-Man-dalay railroad was brought under siege, Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters revealed. The admiral's communiqué came shortly after American Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell announced that his Chinese forces on the Salween river front had captured the southern airdrome at Myitkyna.

PARTY CHIEFS TO ORGANIZE AT CAPITAL MAY 22

COLUMBUS, May 18—Both the Republican and Democratic state central committees elected at the May 9 primary will meet in Columbus Monday to organize their forces for the coming campaign.

With only nine changes in its membership roster, the Republican committee, meeting at noon, will go through the motions of electing itself as the state executive committee, and then re-elect Ed D. Schorr as joint chairman. The party is content to move along under Schorr's guidance.

Not so with the Democrats, however. Finally fed up with the internal bickering which have kicked the party into a state of semi-consciousness in the past few years, the Democrats plan to clean house, streamline their party leadership under the single hand of present Central Committee Chairman Albert A. Horstman of Dayton, and shatter tradition by naming a national committeeman and committeewoman in advance of the national convention.

For not only will the central committee meet Monday evening, but the slate of delegates to the national convention will hold its organizational dinner also. The delegates are nominally pledged to State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, seeking re-election, but actually they are on the fourth term bandwagon of President Roosevelt.

AUTO DAMAGED

American Sub Sneaks Under Noses of Japs; Saves 22 Downed Airmen

Tang's "passenger manifest" on the return cruise from Truk were Lt. (jg) Robert T. Barber, Rockville Center, L. I., and Scott Scammell and Yardley Bricks, Count, Pa.

"We approached the Truk lagoon and surfaced April 29 because there were plenty of our planes overhead," said O'Kane, who revealed that the Tang was not once subjected to attack by Japanese airmen.

Directed By Planes

Planes directed the submarine southwest of Olan island in the middle of the afternoon to a point where three fliers were spotted paddling yellow rafts toward a reef inside the lagoon.

These three—Lt. Scammell and his crew of Gendron and Gemmell—were the first recipients of the Tang's hospitality. They had been in the water five hours before their rescue.

Then the Tang was informed that another raft had been sighted inside the reef and pilots still in the air, O'Kane related, "seemed disgusted with us because we didn't crawl right across the reef like a lizard."

A short time later the Tang was told that another raft had been sighted 30 miles away in the vicinity of Kuop islands. En route to this designated spot in the ocean and submarine passed so close to Olan that O'Kane opened up against enemy positions with the Tang's deck gun.

"But we didn't have any more luck until the next day—and then business really picked up," said O'Kane.

Called To Olan

O'Kane was summoned again to the vicinity of Olan where the Tang picked up Knaeze and two others, and the sub skipper met Burns for the first time.

Knaeze, a raw-boned fighter pilot, explained that he had been shot down the previous day, paddled through the lagoon and crossed the reef in darkness.

Burns, 25, a pink-cheeked Irishman who attended St. Joseph's college in Philadelphia and planned to study for the priesthood, landed and picked up the hapless trio and waited until the Tang came alongside to take them aboard.

Burns and a radoman took off again, despite the heavy sea and just as the Tang's quartermaster saw another carrier plane spinning into the water.

While Knaeze explained that he had been more concerned with escaping from Truk than being drowned, the submarine plowed toward the position of the new victim—Commander Matter of a torpedo bomber carrier group.

Matter and Crewman Lenahan and A. J. Thompson were surprised to be rescued only 25 minutes after anti-aircraft fire had felled their plane.

"We had already planned a course to New Guinea," said Matter. "I couldn't believe we could be picked up so fast anywhere except in the newspapers."

Rescues Continue

After Matter's rescue the Tang again heard from Burns, who had set down his pontooned "Kingfisher" to pick up more fliers. He had sighted three rafts containing fallen birdmen and while the submarine was en route to take them aboard fighters overhead directed the Tang to change course and rescue Lt. Harry E. Hill of Minnesota, whose position was more precarious as he was stranded on a reef.

The planes overhead then spied a flier without a raft, dropped him a rubber boat and called the Tang.

When Lt. James Cole of Texas came aboard he was "the most appreciative," said O'Kane, "because he had been without a raft and he nearly drowned."

After this twin rescue O'Kane steered a course to find Burns—and when he located him Burns had his plane's wings and fuselage covered with humanity.

The rush of the swells, however, smashed the tail of the plane so Burns was unable to take off again. Consequently, he and Radoman Gill also had to be picked up by the Tang, which sent the hapless "Kingfisher" to the bottom with gunfire.

"That was more than Burns wanted to see," said O'Kane, "in telling how the daring rescue flier went below deck when the order was given to sink his plane."

Still More Work

The Tang's work, however, was still unfinished despite the approach of darkness. From the conning tower where the navigator, Lt. Comdr. Murray B. Frazer, of Gettysburg, Pa., had all but contracted "acute jitters" searching for a path about the reefs, a lookout sighted a brilliant shaft of light from a Very signal.

In the gathering dusk, O'Kane

ordered the Tang to move in the direction of the signal and he eventually found Lt. Donald Kirkpatrick of Illinois and Ordnanceman Richard Bentley of California "the coolest shot down fliers I've ever seen."

Kirkpatrick, who had been shot up five times and once previously shot down by anti-aircraft fire, told O'Kane he was "making no bones about cruising eleven hundred miles to New Guinea."

O'Kane remarked that aviators "have sizeable appetites, but fortunately he had plenty of food in the ice box."

The sub skipper put Commander Matter at work as the navigator and ordered the other fliers to stand watches.

"We needed bunk space and had to sleep in shifts," he explained, "but I believe they all were glad enough to do that."

Matter admitted he enjoyed this, his first undersea cruise during his entire navy career, but he guessed he would "still rather be a flat top flier."

After recounting the details of the dramatic rescue, O'Kane's story drifted back into the terminology of the "silent service."

"We carried out a routine patrol," he said, "and returned to base."

55,000 RETURNING TO WAR JOBS IN DETROIT PLANTS

DETROIT, May 18—Fifty-five thousand workers, made idle by the strike of 3,500 members of the Foreman's Association of America, started streaming back to Detroit's war plants today.

Stung by charges of national war leaders that their strike was one of the most "severe setbacks in aviation history," the foremen, in six chapter meetings last night, voted almost unanimously to return to work today.

The decision to terminate the 20-day-old strike followed a back-to-work directive issued by Robert H. Keys, president of the FAA, after a conference with government officials in Washington.

No estimate of when the plants might resume full production was available. Workers affected by the strike were ordered to report for their regular shifts where further instructions would await them.

The Packard Motor Company, where 35,000 workers are out, announced that all departments, except four, will start work at 7:30 this evening. Production in the other departments will be resumed Friday morning and evening.

Announcements were expected today from the other plants affected by the strike—Briggs Manufacturing Company, Hudson Motor Car, Murray Corporation of America, Aeronautical Products Company and Gar Wood Industries.

NAZI PRISONERS CITE STRENGTH OF HITLER LINE

NAPLES, May 18—German prisoners taken in the battle which smashed the Nazi Gustav line said today that the Hitler line which now is under Allied assault had been constructed during the last three months by the TODT organization which built the German Siegfried line and the Atlantic wall defenses.

Aerial photographs of the line reveal that a stretch across the Liri valley has more than 200 bunkers, at least 70 pillboxes and minor concrete works. In addition there is a continuous line of barbed wire and 12 miles of anti-tank ditches. These join up with natural obstacles provided by deep water courses intersecting the plain.

All houses in the area have been demolished to provide a clear field of fire.

Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring is expected to defend the line with great stubbornness. Headquarters disclosed that the German withdrawal from Monte Maio, the point at which the French unhinged the Gustav line, was so rapid that the Nazis had no time to recover their dead. A total of 400 to 500 bodies was found in the area awaiting burial, indicating the fierceness of the struggle.

Gandhi, we read, has a fever. That makes it even. For many years now he's caused the British Indian authorities' temperature to rise.

which governments would exchange agreements permitting their respective airlines freedom of transit and "technical landing" in other countries.

Under this system, for example, a Canadian air line would be permitted to operate planes across the United States, enroute to South America, and would be permitted to land for refueling, but not to pick up or discharge passengers.

And reciprocally, United States airlines would be permitted to cross Canada with the same privileges and restrictions.

Both the British and American delegations agreed that some sort of international civil aviation authority should be established, but there was a wide difference between them as to the powers it should exercise.

The British urged an authority with power to establish routes, fixed rates, admit or reject member companies, and generally manage the world's civil aviation as firmly as the civil aeronautics board manages the airlines of the United States.

But the American delegation flatly opposed giving the agency such powers, and insisted it have control only in technical matters such as radio, lighting, and traffic control.

This would leave private airlines free to compete for the world's business, instead of being bound by the rates and schedules of the international authority.

The success of this project, in the London conversations, gave rise to Lord Beaverbrook's comment in the house of lords that the British had come around to Berle's project for freedom of the air.

But officials emphasized that this was merely the sort of freedom of competition which United States airlines wished to enjoy, and in which they expect to be able to surpass foreign competition.

The senate commerce subcommittee, which is seeking to develop an American international aviation policy, has now ended private hearings. Sen. Josiah Bailey (D) N. C., chairman of the commerce committee, said efforts will be made to develop a world policy.

off the war, aid them physically, and turn the pages of their memories back to the days when they engaged in clean sports at home.

"If we give our youngsters a chance to play and relax when they are back from the foxholes on the fighting fronts, they will be better able physically and mentally to bring this war to a successful conclusion, and quickly."

The fund which, he emphasized, is not only for boys who came from the Pacific area, but from all parts of the country, has sent out 40,000 decks of playing cards.

Among its other shipments were: 2,400 softballs; 245 basketballs; 203 footballs; 147 water polo balls; 277 volleyballs; 194 soccer balls; 185 sets of boxing gloves; 107 medicine balls; 216 horseshoe sets; 1,450 sets of games, including dominoes, cribbage, checkers, darts and bingo; and $8,000 worth of fishing equipment.

The boys in the Pacific area also have been receiving 7,000 copies each week of "The Sporting News," a sports paper published in St. Louis.

"A priest, serving as a chaplain, wrote us," said Cochrane, "that his copy of 'The Sporting News' had been passed around the hospital so much that it was worn out before it got back to him. That hospital now receives fifteen copies."

"The chaplain also wrote that every boy there was anxious to have the major leagues continue so that they could get the eagerly-awaited baseball news out there."

Brown, Cochrane, and other fund directors have received thousands of letters from chaplains and fighting men expressing appreciation of the sports equipment. They learned that on Guadalcanal, 12 softball teams have been formed, including one of army and navy nurses, and that the latter beat a men's team.

Cochrane proudly disclosed that during the first six months of operation the fund, with headquarters at 9010 Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles, used 97.9 percent of all money collected for athletic equipment, with only 2.1 percent used for operating expenses.

Her friends became alarmed when they had not seen her for 24 hours, but news of her disappearance was concealed for six days before the police received the alarm. Then followed one of the most comprehensive searches ever undertaken by New York authorities. They scanned every foot of International house, drained five large tanks atop the building and sifted 150 tons of coal.

They searched nearby vacant houses and dragged the Hudson river over a wide area. In addition to the police, FBI agents, representatives of the state department and private detectives hired by the family joined in the hunt, which extended to California.

HARRY TOPOLOSKY HELD PRISONER BY GERMANS
Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Topolosky, Columbus, former Circleville residents, have received word that their son, Harry Topolosky, who was reported missing in action in the European theatre of war, is now a prisoner of war in Germany. Topolosky had been known to have been in Italy. A letter to his parents stated that he had landed there February 14. The War Department notified his parents that he was taken prisoner February 17.

He is a nephew of William Topolosky, manager of the local Sons Grille.

ABNER GRIFFEY BACK AFTER TWO YEARS OF WAR

Sergeant Abner Griffey (Lt. Abner) former proofreader on The Circleville Herald, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Griffey, Pearl street, is home after spending more than two years in overseas service. Abner is wearing three stripes and says he would have been a top sergeant if he would have waited a few weeks. But the temptation to come home was too great.

Volunteering for service in April, 1941, after being turned down by the Navy because he was too light, he has been in Australia, New Caledonia, on Guadalcanal, in the Fiji's and on Bougainville. Asked if he had gotten any Japs, he replied "not directly, but indirectly, plenty." His job is not firing a gun, but helping direct fire.

Sgt. Griffey arrived in Circleville, Wednesday and using his own expression "was overcome with joy." He is about the same shade as the natives of the Fiji's and was planning on eating his first home cooked meal in a long time where he said there would be ample butter at least. He is very thin, as a result of malaria. He brings good news to the relatives of Circleville men who are in the Pacific area, saying all are well and looking forward to their return. Among those who were with him are John Jenkins, Richard Smalley, William Friece, Ralph Friley, Robert Trimble and Mace Brown.

He will report to Camp Butler, Durham, N. C., in three weeks.

CARL CRABLE DIES AT UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL
Carl Crable, 53, Maplewood Ave., died in University Hospital, Columbus, Wednesday. He was a native of Pickaway county and was reared on the Isaac Hoffman farm in Washington township.

Mr. Crable is survived by a widow, who was Miss Nettie Huff, two sons, Kermit E. and Earl William, both of whom are serving with the Armed Forces, and a daughter, Nettie Mae, at home.

Funeral service, which will be held at the Defenbach chapel, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, will be conducted by the Rev. C. A. Way, of the Nazarene church. Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

The body will be taken to the residence, 718 Maplewood Ave., Friday where friends may call.

MOTORIST FINED
Forrest W. Storts, 27, South Court street, was fined $10 and costs in Justice of Peace court, Chillicothe, Wednesday for passing over the yellow center line in Route 23 near Chillicothe. He was arrested by the state highway patrol.

NO REFUGE IN AMERICA FROM COMMON COLD
CHICAGO, May 18—There is no refuge in the United States from the common cold, Dr. Harold S. Diehl, dean of medical sciences at the University of Minnesota, declared today.

Dr. Diehl, in a lecture at the University of Illinois college of medicine, displayed charts indicating the prevalence of colds in Chicago, Boston, Columbus, O., Washington, D. C., Berkeley, Cal., and New Orleans. He commented: "You will note that these charts refute the commonly heard plaint of 'Oh, if I only could go to California, or some other state, I never would have colds.' The hills and valleys of prevalence in these cities chosen at random are so similar that the charts almost could be substituted for each other."

"Bigger And More Difficult Landings" In The Making, Marine General Says

would be welcomed by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, whose armadas have been challenging the imperial navy for months without results.

America's fleet now numbers at least 1,300 warships of all types, and the majority are in the Pacific. In addition, British fleet units have been challenging the Japs in the Indian ocean.

Shifting of Power
It must be recalled that Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, at a news conference several months ago predicted that Allied power for offensive blows would be shifted to the Pacific even before the collapse of Germany.

The feeling has been growing in official circles that the coming weeks and months will bring action in the Pacific on a scale undreamed of in modern warfare action that will hasten the defeat of Japan.

Meanwhile, United States Army, Navy and Marine corps airmen have been keeping the Jap high command guessing by hammering enemy bases in the Kuriles, Marshall, Carolines, the New Guinea area and deep into the East Indies.

The Kuriles are threatened by powerful American forces in the Aleutians, from which the Japs were swept last Spring and Summer.

Jap bases in the Carolines, which include Truk, now are under the shadow of United States forces in the Western Marshalls.

Enemy bases in the East Indies and the Southern Philippines are threatened by Allied land, sea and air forces under MacArthur.

And the Tokyo radio has been warning its listeners they could expect air attacks by powerful United States carrier task forces.

GRIMM READY TO TRADE MOST OF SO-CALLED CLUB

Phillies, Dodgers, Giants Approached Without Chicago Benefit

BY DAVID J. WALSH
CHICAGO, May 18—At or about the same time that one of the New York writers was wiring back a masterpiece of invective to his paper, roundly berating the Chicago Cubs as being strictly from Esthonia, their manager, Charley Grimm, was telling the writer last night (at least by inference) there were comparative few men on his reputed ball club who aren't subject to immediate trade. Some of the exceptions can be mentioned because Grimm himself mentioned them in that connection.

They are outfielders Bill Nicholson, who led the National League last year in home runs and runs batted in; Andy Parko, coast league batting champion, and Ed Sauer, who led the southern association.

Another exception doubtless is Phil Caveretta, first baseman and field captain, although he wasn't specifically cited. It also is to be assumed that anybody who looks like he can pitch at all won't be traded, as pitching is prominent among the several factors that have landed the Cubs where they are (which is approximately upon the back of their britches).

Lacks Pitchers

However, it may be just as well to add that there are quite a few guys at Wrigley field who look like they can't pitch at all.

Managers Freddie Fitzsimmons, of the Phillies; Leo Durocher, of the Dodgers, and Mel Ott, of the Giants, have already been approached, it seems, since Grimm took over the club a week and a half ago. But trade talk appeared to die in its own apathy.

"Fitz said he wasn't interested right now," Grimm added last night. "And, I wouldn't be, either—if I were him, right now. The other two didn't have anything to say that's worth repeating."

As to that, however, we wonder. There has been a persistent report, in fact, ever since the Dodgers' visit that Durocher made every effort to get infielder Eddie Skunk from Grimm, who is said to have shuddered violently when Pitcher Rube Melton's name was mentioned as feasible trading material on the other side of the deal.

Press Impulsive

Bob Chipman, left hander; Bill Lohman, who hasn't been in action much, if at all, this year; and Ed Head also have been talked about in this connection (mostly, if not altogether so, by the press which is always very impulsive with other people's property).

However, there's a fair possibility that when (if ever) a new pitcher is brought in here, he'll come from a direction other than Brooklyn; and that his arrival, if any, may mean the departure of a Cub outfielder of which they have far too many. But Grimm only mused absently last night:

"I've got to do something to get us out of this... even if we all have to leave town. I'll make any reasonable deal with anybody for a starting pitcher."

"Why, do you know, I've used 32 pitchers in the 11 games played since I took the club over? But of course that angle has another side. It means that practically nobody on the staff has had a real rest. They haven't been right because they haven't had a chance to be—and vice versa."

GAME RAINED OUT

Rain in the third inning caused the postponement of the Blue Ribbon-Circle City softball game Wednesday evening. The game which has been eagerly awaited by the fans had started out to be a nip and tuck affair, with the Circle City team holding a 3-2 lead when the downpour came. Thursday evening the Economy Shoe team meets the Ralston-Purina outfit at the Ted Lewis Park.

Chillicothe Thin-Clads Win 88 To 30 Victory Over Listless Tigers

Circleville high school's track team traveled to Chillicothe Wednesday afternoon and was defeated by the Blue and White of Chillicothe by the score of 88 to 30. The meet was held at Herrnstien field.

The Tigers failed to display any of the ability which they showed at Wilmington, last Friday in the South Central Ohio league meet. They were able to win only two first places, those being gained by Eddie (Freck) Heath, who won the 880 and 440 yard runs.

Bobby Grubb who was high man for Circleville at Wilmington was able to gain three second places. The times were much slower than those registered in the South Central meet. Summary:

TRYOUTS FOR BASEBALL TO BE HELD SUNDAY
 Youths of Circleville and Circleville township who are interested in playing baseball this Summer are asked to report at the Ted Lewis Park Sunday afternoon.

Two divisions will be organized, one a Junior division which will consist of boys from the ages of 13 to 18. The Senior division will be for boys 18 and over.

The tryouts for the Junior division will be held at 1:30 and the Senior group at 3:30. All aspirants are asked to bring their own equipment.

DEAD FISH GETS AWAY

CLEVELAND OUT TO REPORT WIN OVER SENATORS
 WASHINGTON, May 18—The Cleveland Indians today were out to repeat yesterday's decisive 4 to 2 triumph over the Washington Senators.

With Vern Kennedy limiting the Senators to four scattered safeties, the Indians collected ten hits off Knuckle Baller Roger Wolff, four of them coming during a three-run uprising in the eighth.

Jeff Heath and Oris Hockett led the Indian attack with a double and two singles and a triple and two singles respectively.

"Fitz said he wasn't interested right now," Grimm added last night. "And, I wouldn't be, either—if I were him, right now. The other two didn't have anything to say that's worth repeating."

As to that, however, we wonder. There has been a persistent report, in fact, ever since the Dodgers' visit that Durocher made every effort to get infielder Eddie Skunk from Grimm, who is said to have shuddered violently when Pitcher Rube Melton's name was mentioned as feasible trading material on the other side of the deal.

However, there's a fair possibility that when (if ever) a new pitcher is brought in here, he'll come from a direction other than Brooklyn; and that his arrival, if any, may mean the departure of a Cub outfielder of which they have far too many. But Grimm only mused absently last night:

"I've got to do something to get us out of this... even if we all have to leave town. I'll make any reasonable deal with anybody for a starting pitcher."

"Why, do you know, I've used 32 pitchers in the 11 games played since I took the club over? But of course that angle has another side. It means that practically nobody on the staff has had a real rest. They haven't been right because they haven't had a chance to be—and vice versa."

TOP TEAMS OF AMERICAN IN CAT-DOG FIGHT

Something Threatens To Snap With Yankees Showing Weakness

NEW YORK, May 18—The top teams in the American league pennant race are running such a close contest today that something threatens to snap. New York, St. Louis and Washington, with the occasional aid of Philadelphia, are developing a cat-and-dog fight, which, before it is ended, might see one of the closest flag races in the history of the game.

Second place, in particular, has received a terrific kicking around. Yesterday, for instance, the Senators had a chance to draw up a shade behind the Yanks for first place, and instead dropped into third place in a tie with the Athletics, with St. Louis edging into second spot. A heartening note for the opposition is the fact that the Yankees might be weakening.

Certainly, the Yankees looked none too good in losing a 4 to 0 decision to the Chicago White Sox. Orval Grove kept Yankee batters handcuffed with five hits, all of them singles, while his mates pounced on Joe Page for four runs.

Nor did the Senators look superb in losing an arc contest to the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 2, on a three-run rally in the eighth inning. However, Verne Kennedy and Roger Wolff staged a great pitching duel for seven innings, and Kennedy limited the Senators to four hits.

The Athletics were halted by the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1, before 25-535 and thus were stopped in another brief attempt to work up to the lead. An error by Shortstop Irvin Hall in the night game led to two Detroit runs in the eighth inning. Bobo Newsom allowed only one hit up to the eighth inning and his game was ruined by Hall's heart-breaker.

The St. Louis Browns split a daylight twin bill with the Boston Red Sox, losing the first game 5 to 1, on the four-hit pitching of Tex Hughson, and winning the second, 12 to 8, on twelve bases on balls issued by five Boston pitchers.

The Brooklyn Dodgers-Pittsburgh Pirates game was called at the end of the sixth because of rain, with Pittsburgh ahead, 8 to 5. The Pirates already had run up a total of 11 hits off Cal McLish and Hal Gregg.

Rain also broke up the Cincinnati Reds-Philadelphia Phillies at the end of the eighth, but not before Pitcher Bucky Walters, in the role of pinchhitter, slammed out an eighth inning double to give the Reds a 6 to 5 win.

The New York Giants ran the Chicago Cubs' losses to 18 in 22 games with a 10 to 6 triumph, whacking out 16 hits off five Cubs pitchers. The Giants came from behind to score five runs in the seventh and three more in the eighth to sew up the victory.

The weak Boston Braves rapped out a 5 to 1 decision over the league-leading St. Louis Cards. Charley Barrett limited the Cards to five hits while his clubmates nicked Harry Brecheen and Ted Wilks for 11.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18—The Williams, the Trenton trip-hammer, today was signed for a ten-round bout with Sammy Angott, former N.B.A. lightweight champion, in the first open air boxing show of the season at Shibe park, June 6.

Promoter Herman Taylor expects the fight to draw 20,000 fans.

REDS ALONE IN SECOND PLACE; DROP PHILLIES

CINCINNATI, May 18—The Cincinnati Reds today held undisputed possession of second place in the National league by virtue of a hard-fought 6 to 5 decision over the third-place Philadelphia Phillies.

Bucky Walters, scheduled to take the mound in today's game against the Phillies, provided the winning margin with a pinch hit double in the eighth inning, scoring Dain Clay.

The Reds collected a total of ten hits off the offerings of losing pitcher Johnny Donahue. Ed Malloy was the winning hurler, allowing the Phillies ten safeties.

GRIMM READY TO TRADE MOST OF SO-CALLED CLUB

Phillies, Dodgers, Giants Approached Without Chicago Benefit

BY DAVID J. WALSH

CHICAGO, May 18 — At or about the same time that one of the New York writers was wiring back a masterpiece of invective to his paper, roundly berating the Chicago Cubs as being strictly from Esthonia, their manager, Charley Grimm, was telling the writer last night (at least by inference) there were comparative few men on his reputed ball club who aren't subject to immediate trade. Some of the exceptions can be mentioned because Grimm himself mentioned them in that connection.

They are outfielders Bill Nicholson, who led the National League last year in home runs and runs batted in; Andy Paiko, coast league batting champion, and Ed Sauer, who led the southern association.

Another exception doubtless is Phil Caveretta, first baseman and field captain, although he wasn't specifically cited. It also is to be assumed that anybody who looks like he can pitch at all won't be traded, as pitching is prominent among the several factors that have landed the Cubs where they are (which is approximately upon the back of their britches).

Lacks Pitchers

However, it may be just as well to add that there are quite a few guys at Wrigley field who look like they can't pitch at all.

Managers Freddie Fitzsimmons, of the Phillies; Leo Durocher, of the Dodgers; and Mel Ott, of the Giants, have already been approached. It seems, since Grimm took over the club a week and a half ago, but trade talk appeared to die in its own apathy.

"Fitz said he wasn't interested right now," Grimm added last night. "And I wouldn't be, either—if I were him, right now. The other two didn't have anything to say that's worth repeating."

As to that, however, we wonder. There has been a persistent report, in fact, ever since the Dodgers' visit that Durocher made every effort to get infielder Eddie Manky, from Grimm, who is said to have shuddered violently when Pitcher Rube Melton's name was mentioned as feasible trading material on the other side of the deal.

Press Impulsive

Bob Chipman, left hander; Bill Lohman, who hasn't been in action much, if at all, this year; and Ed Head also have been talked about in this connection (mostly, if not altogether so, by the press which is always very impulsive with other people's property).

However, there's a fair possibility that when (if ever) a new pitcher is brought in here, he'll come from a direction other than Brooklyn; and that his arrival, if any, may mean the departure of a Cub outfielder (of which they have far too many). But Grimm only missed last night:

"I've got to do something to get us out of this... even if we all have to leave town. I'll make any reasonable deal with anybody for a starting pitcher."

"Why, do you know, I've used 32 pitchers in the 11 games played since I took the club over? But of course that angle has another side. It means that practically nobody on the staff has had a real rest. They haven't been right because they haven't had a chance to be—and vice versa."

GAME RAINED OUT

Rain in the third inning caused the postponement of the Blue Ribbon-Circle City softball game Wednesday evening. The game which has been eagerly awaited by the fans had started out to be a nip and tuck affair, with the Circle City team holding a 3-2 lead when the downpour came. Thursday evening the Economy Shoe team meets the Ralston-Purina outfit at the Ted Lewis Park.

Chillicothe Thin-Clads Win 88 To 30 Victory Over Listless Tigers

Circleville high school's track team traveled to Chillicothe Wednesday afternoon and was defeated by the Blue and White of Chillicothe by the score of 88 to 30. The meet was held at Herrnstein field.

The Tigers failed to display any of the ability which they showed at Wilmington, last Friday in the South Central Ohio league meet. They were able to win only two first places, those being gained by Eddie (Freck) Heath, who won the 880 and 440 yard runs.

Bobby Grubb who was high man for Circleville at Wilmington was able to gain three second places. The times were much slower than those registered in the South Central meet. Summary:

DEAD FISH GETS AWAY

BOISE, Idaho—Dead fish don't often get away, but an elusive rainbow trout has left the Idaho State Department. Clerks and officials arrived at work the other day to find one section of the wall was bare. A stuffed fish had hung there for several years.

ATHLETES FOOT GERM NOT HARD TO KILL

The germ grows deeply. To reach it, use a penetrating fungicide. Many remedies do not penetrate sufficiently. TE-OL solution, made with 90% alcohol, PENETRATES. Kills the germs it reaches. APPLY FULL STRENGTH for itchy, sweaty or smelly feet. Your shoe tomorrow from any drugstore if not pleased. Locally at Hamilton & Ryan.

YOUR FAN

Before the temperature hits the 90's, give your fan a little extra care. Check it and see it is in working order. If it doesn't have a sealed motor, it needs regular oiling to keep it running smoothly.

When oiling fan, use special electric motor oil obtained from your hardware dealer. Don't use ordinary machine oil.

See that motor cord does not kink and oscillator cord does not rub against fan frame or guard.

Repair frayed cords to avoid short circuit. For reconditioning, take it to your appliance dealer or service man.

CITY PROPOSAL ON WATER PLANT MAY BE REVISED

Council Studies Rejection Of $450,000 Bid For Ohio Service Property

PLANS SPECIAL MEETING

Solicitor Communicates With SEC, Asking Aid In Local Project

Circleville's proposal to buy the local plant of the Ohio Water Service Co. may be revised over the week end as result of a study being conducted of the company's rejection of the municipality's bid of $450,000 for the property.

City council Wednesday evening was officially notified of the rejection, but took no action other than to instruct City Solicitor Adkins to contact the ponding house that had offered to finance the project and to learn that organization's reaction.

The Ohio Co. rejected the bid not because of the price, for it said the directors gave the price no consideration, but because of provisions in the bid that failed to make it binding except if the city is able to raise the money and that the bonds at time of issue must be exempt from federal tax.

Provisions Supported

Solicitor Adkins said that the provisions in the bid are no different than those usually included in such proposals and that they are necessary to protect the city's interest. He told council that he had communicated with the public utilities division of SEC and would report on the SEC reaction at a called meeting within the next day or two.

F. H. Waring, chief engineer of the state board of health, attended the council meeting and told officials that the board is willing and anxious to cooperate with the municipality in the deal. He cited the fact that all except 10 cities and 19 villages in Ohio own their water plants.

Mr. Waring cited the importance of including in the deal provisions for necessary plant improvement and said that a survey of the local property made by his department and filed as of December 27, 1943, is available for study. He also offered to send a department engineer to the city to bring the report up to date.

Mr. Waring received official thanks for his interest and assurance that the council will take advantage of the board's offer of cooperation.

ASHVILLE

The Ashville-Lockbourne Lutheran Brotherhood will be in session at the Ashville church Wednesday evening at 8:30.

A nice-sized crowd was in attendance at the Methodist church Tuesday evening to hear Flight Officer Edwin Swayer speak about his experiences in North Africa and Italy as a radio officer in the Air Corps. Refreshments were served by the Friendship class.

An interesting program has been prepared by the Senior Class for their Class Night to be held in the school auditorium Friday evening.

The Ashville-Circleville baseball game was rained out Tuesday afternoon. Ashville's next appearance will be in the District meet Thursday afternoon at 4:00 on diamond 4 at Ohio State where they will meet Southeastern of Scioto Co. Ashville is representing Pickaway Co. in the District.

Eugene Borror, who is the manager of the Ashville Grain Co., purchased the Palmer dwelling on Walnut street Saturday, and plans to remove there in the near future. Mrs. George Gardner will occupy the dwelling made vacant by the Borror family.

The Ashville Village and the Ashville-Harrison joint Boards of Education met Tuesday evening to decide matters relative to the successful closing of the school year. The paying of bills and discussion of methods of repairing the school building roof occupied much of the time.

Eleven Boys and Four Girls Graduated By Saltcreek High School

At a time when boys are in the minority in graduation classes Saltcreek township high school graduated eleven boys and only four girls in their 1944 class, at exercises which were held in the auditorium of the school, Wednesday evening.

Dr. Ward G. Reeder, of the Department of Education of Ohio State university, was the speaker and the high school orchestra provided the music for the exercises.

The devotionals were in the charge of the Rev. Wayne Baxter, pastor of the Tarlton Methodist area, and George McDowell, county superintendent, gave a short talk.

BREHMER SAYS TIME RIGHT TO TRIM SPIREA

R. L. Brehmer of the Brehmer Greenhouses advises persons who wish to have a healthy and beautiful spirea hedge or bush next season to cut it back severely now. Mr. Brehmer says that now is the time to trim it just after it has bloomed. This shrub is sometimes called Bridal Wreath of Vanhoutte. His advise is to cut it off to about a foot and a half below the height that it should be next year. He said there may not be much left but bare sticks when trimming is complete but it will branch out and be more healthy for the trimming. Bushes that are not trimmed now will hang over and kill the grass they shade this summer and will not be as well shaped or have as much bloom next year.

A warning was also come from an Ohio State horticultural specialist, to persons buying trees, shrubs and roses now. He cautioned prospective buyers to nick the stems of all packaged stock before buying as many of these plants have been packaged so long they have died on the shelves or in storage. If the cut made in the bark with the fingernail shows green the plant is alive, he says, but if it shows brown the plant is dead. He also said that very few rose bushes bought now except potted, growing plants will bloom this year.

WILLIAM H. ATWOOD DIES

William Harvey Atwood, 90, died Wednesday at 4 p. m. in Madison township, Fairfield county, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Heskett of Revenge. Mr. Atwood made his home with the Heskett family, his only known connections being members of the Ours family of Monroe township, Pickaway county.

Funeral services will be Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at Pine Grove church, Madison township, Fairfield county, with the Rev. Emmett Frazier officiating. Burial in Pine Grove cemetery will be in charge of the Deffenbaugh funeral home.

New Version of an Old American Tradition

We were sitting on Ed Carey's porch, enjoying a friendly glass of beer, when a squadron of fighter planes goes over—in tight formation—swift and trim and powerful.

"There," says Ed proudly, "goes an American tradition." "What do you mean, tradition?" Eben Crowell says. "America's a hundred sixty years old—flying's the newest thing there is."

"But those planes," says Ed, "they're the best in the world—the best made and the best flown. That's what I mean by an American tradition: making things, doing things, just a little better, whether it's an airplane or a railroad or a glass of fine American beer like this."

And from where I sit, Ed has put his finger on what makes America great—and will keep her great. The urge to do things just a little better—from the planes we make to the glass of beer that we enjoy. Things to be proud of—all of them!

PROFIT SHOWN BY CITY DURING MONTH OF APRIL

Circleville operated at a profit of $17,788.96 during April, according to a report covering that period which was filed with city council Wednesday evening by Auditor Lillian Young. Part of that sum, however, represents a transfer of cash to the hospital fund. Receipts for the month were $26,178.67 and expenditures $12,678.56.

The disposal plant took in $3,590.95 during the month at a cost of $1,739.58 and the parking meters provided $855.29 to the treasury.

During the month $7,478.78 in bonds were retired.

The members of the class were Dorothy Brobst, Jean Goode, Margaret Ann Hill, Charles McCoy, Pauline Manheavers, Neil Matz, Paul Ott and Fairy Richards. Each member of the class took part in the program which was enjoyed by a large crowd of interested parents and friends. The "American Prayer" was sung by boys of the class and the girls sang "Sweet Springtime". "Farewell to Thee" was sung by the entire class.

U. L. Gibson, chaplain at the Lockbourne Army Air Base, was the speaker at the Madison township school, Wednesday evening, when a class of 12, received eight grade certificates. The class members were Nancy Brown, John Counts, William Little, Ann Logsdon, Patty Jo Miller, Betty Peters, Ireta Regar, Barbara Sherman, Barbara Smith, Rosemary Stewart, Darrel Truex and Ralph Stir.

Each member of the class took part in the program which was enjoyed by a large crowd of interested parents and friends.

The "American Prayer" was sung by the entire class.

COUNTY RELIEF BILL $1,162 FOR MONTH OF APRIL

Pickaway county spent $1,162.75 on relief during April and of this sum $557.80 was charged against the city. The figures are under 1943 when the total relief bill was $1,992.78 with a city bill of $856.02. Since the state matches relief expenditures the actual bill to Circleville for April of this year was $309.67 as compared with $583.29 last year.

"This relief bill is still too high," Don Mason told fellow members of council Wednesday evening when the report was read. "We have on relief men who are perfectly able to work, but who refuse to do so. In these days of manpower shortage every man who is willing and able has a job. I am not in favor of providing relief for those who refuse to help themselves."

Cupid gave a rose as a bride to Harpocrates, god of silence, that established this flower as the bloom of tactfulness.

CITY PROPOSAL ON WATER PLANT MAY BE REVISED

Council Studies Rejection Of $450,000 Bid For Ohio Service Property

PLANS SPECIAL MEETING

Solicitor Communicates With SEC, Asking Aid In Local Project

Circleville's proposal to buy the local plant of the Ohio Water Service Co. may be revised over the week end as result of a study being conducted of the company's rejection of the municipality's bid of $450,000 for the property.

City council Wednesday evening was officially notified of the rejection, but took no action other than to instruct City Solicitor Adkins to contact the bonding house that had offered to finance the project and to learn that organization's reaction.

The Ohio Co. rejected the bid not because of the price, for it said the directors gave the price no consideration, but because of provisions in the bid that failed to make it binding except if the city is able to raise the money and that the bonds at time of issue must be exempt from federal tax.

Provisos Supported

Solicitor Adkins said that the provisos in the bid are no different than those usually included in such proposals and that they are necessary to protect the city's interest. He told council that he had communicated with the public utilities division of SEC and would report on the SEC reaction at a called meeting within the next day or two.

F. H. Waring, chief engineer of the state board of health, attended the council meeting and told officials that the board is willing and anxious to cooperate with the municipality in the deal. He cited the fact that all except 10 cities and 19 villages in Ohio own their water plants.

Mr. Waring cited the importance of including in the deal provisions for necessary plant improvement and said that a survey of the local property made by his department and filed as of December 27, 1943, is available for study. He also offered to send a department engineer to the city to bring the report up to date.

Mr. Waring received official thanks for his interest and assurance that the council will take advantage of the board's offer of cooperation.

Eugene Borror, who is the manager of the Ashville Grain Co., purchased the Palmer dwelling on Walnut street Saturday, and plans to remove there in the near future. Mrs. George Gardner will occupy the dwelling made vacant by the Borror family.

The Ashville Village and the Ashville-Harrison joint Boards of Education met Tuesday evening to decide matters relative to the successful closing of the school year. The paying of bills and discussion of methods of repairing the school building roof occupied much of the time.

BREHMER SAYS TIME RIGHT TO TRIM SPIREA

R. L. Brehmer of the Brehmer Greenhouses advises persons who wish to have a healthy and beautiful spirea hedge or bush next season to cut it back severely now. Mr. Brehmer says that now is the time to trim it just after it has bloomed. This shrub is sometimes called Bridal Wreath of Vanhoutte. His advice is to cut it off to about a foot and a half below the height that it should be next year. He said there may not be much left but bare sticks when trimming is complete but it will branch out and be more healthy for the trimming. Bushes that are not trimmed now will hang over and kill the grass they shade this Summer and will not be as well shaped or have as much bloom next year.

A warning has also come from an Ohio State horticultural specialist, to persons buying trees, shrubs and roses now. He cautioned prospective buyers to nick the stems of all packaged stock before buying as many of these plants have been packaged so long they have died on the shelves or in storage. If the cut made in the bark with the fingernail shows green the plant is alive, he says, but if it shows brown the plant is dead. ## New Version of an Old American Tradition

We were sitting on Ed Carey's porch, enjoying a friendly glass of beer, when a squadron of fighter planes goes over—in tight formation—swift and trim and powerful.

"There," says Ed proudly, "goes an American tradition." "What do you mean, tradition?" Eben Crowell says. "America's a hundred sixty years old—flying's the newest thing there is."

"But those planes," says Ed, "they're the best in the world—the best made and the best flown. That's what I mean by an American tradition: making things, doing things, just a little better, whether it's an airplane or a railroad or a glass of fine American beer like this."

And from where I sit, Ed has put his finger on what makes America great—and will keep her great. The urge to do things just a little better—from the planes we make to the glass of beer that we enjoy. Things to be proud of—all of them!

The members of the class were Dorothy Brobst, Jean Goode, Margaret Ann Hill, Charles McCoy, Pauline Manbeavers, Neil Matz, Paul Ott and Fairy Richards.

Each member of the class took part in the program which was enjoyed by a large crowd of interested parents and friends.

The "American Prayer" was sung by boys of the class and the girls sang "Sweet Springtime". "Farewell to Thee" was sung by the entire class.

COUNTY RELIEF BILL $1,162 FOR MONTH OF APRIL

Pickaway county spent $1,162.75 on relief during April and of this sum $557.80 was charged against the city. The figures are under 1943 when the total relief bill was $1,992.78 with a city bill of $856.02. Since the state matches relief expenditures the actual billing to Circleville for April of this year was $309.67 as compared with $583.29 last year.

"This relief bill is still too high," Don Mason told fellow members of council Wednesday evening when the report was read. "We have on relief men who are perfectly able to work, but who refuse to do so. In these days of manpower shortage every man who is willing and able has a job. I am not in favor of providing relief for those who refuse to help themselves."

Cupid gave a rose as a bride to Harpocrates, god of silence, that established this flower as the bloom of taciturnity.

INTERNATIONAL ARMIES

THE European war is now a thrilling drama on an international scale. It is so notably in the case of the French, who were struck down and rendered temporarily helpless early in the war, and are now eager to redeem their conquered country from the Germans. French forces distinguished themselves in North Africa, and lately have had the satisfaction of spearheading assaults against the German invaders in Italy. That is still far from Paris, but they are confident that they will arrive.

It has been the same with the Poles, one of the most valiant nations in history. Ever since their country was overrun by the Nazis, they have eagerly joined any army, anywhere, that was ready to fight the Germans. The same spirit prevails in all the nations struck down by Hitler. The invasion from England and America will be truly an international uprising, although led by the British and Americans who supply the most power.

Thus the invasion which an American has the honor of leading, as commander-in-chief, becomes a sort of international Old Home Week. Most Americans themselves have ancestral ties with nations that they now expect to help set free from the German slavery.

All this means a Holy Crusade as surely as did the international Crusades that once fought to rescue the Holy Land from the heathens.

REBUILDING A CONTINENT

THERE will be an immense amount of construction work to be done in Europe after the war. Americans will probably be in it up to their ears. With so many million homes, stores and factories destroyed, so many million miles of roads ruined, it should be a paradise for contractors. Architects, construction workers, carpenters, masons and so on, will be required on an unprecedented scale.

Very likely thousands of Americans, with ancestral roots in western and southern Europe, carried back by this military invasion, will want to stay there when the war is over and help rebuild the "old country." They will carry with them American ideas and methods. The resultant mingling of materials and ideas may be very interesting.

The Nazis sometimes tell the truth. Thus Robert Ley, leader of the German Labor Front and Hitler's handy-man, says truly, "Our enemies may copy everything and anything from us, but they cannot copy Hitler." One thing to be thankful for!

What a world, when everybody's so busy passing the ammunition that you can't get a clock fixed any more!

If we let the Russians do all the fighting, they might decide to let us do all the working.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

HIGH-POWERED PUBLICITY

WASHINGTON—There hasn't been so much published about it, but an efficient high-powered publicity machine is now functioning at Republican headquarters. Some of the news experts have been on the payroll for quite a while and are all set to go for the Republican nominee the minute the final gong sounds at Chicago.

Here is the rollcall of GOP public relations sharks and their stipends:

James P. Salvage, overall GOP publicity boss, salary $1,211 per month (taxes deducted); Robert Pritchard, publicity expert, $459.44 to prepare radio script; W. J. Donald, a perennial fixture at Republican headquarters, draws $730.90 (taxes deducted). Donald is a self-appointed defender of the U. S. Constitution and is kept on the payrolls despite the long series of Republican defeats. His principal duties consist of a daily reading of the Congressional Record and digesting same.

Carlisle Barger, erstwhile critic of Herbert Hoover, now gets $705.46 (taxes deducted) to raise the party he once criticized.

Percy L. Graves, Jr., another "publicity expert," draws $497.88 (taxes deducted). Floyd E. McCaffree, chief GOP researcher, gets $497.88 (taxes deducted) per month to collect speeches made by Roosevelt and show how the President has failed to keep his promises.

Walter F. Brittan, political expert, gets $1,238.72 (taxes deducted) from the Republican party.

G. Glenn Saxon, an Alf Landon brain-truster, is back again and recently charged the GOP $1,104.67 for "services and expenses."

GOOD LUCK IN COLOR

Congressional cloakrooms are chuckling over the latest war plant tour of chunky, indefatigable Congressman Albert Engel of Michigan, Capitol Hill's one-man detective agency.

While inspecting an Alabama bag-loading plant, Engel was told of the extreme care taken to prevent staining of the white linen bags which are filled with powder for howitzer shells. Any bags that are stained while being filled are emptied and thrown away, plant officials reported, because of the possibility of a chemical reaction which might explode the powder.

"We had a big mystery around here several months ago," a plant foreman related by way of illustration. "A number of red stains were found on bags and we couldn't figure out what caused them. Finally, after a chemical analysis of a discarded bag, we discovered to our amazement that it had been stained by lipstick."

"Yes, sir, some of our girl employees had been giving those bags of shell powder a good-luck kiss and saying, 'now, get me a Jap.'"

"Did you make the girls stop?" grinned Engel.

"Oh, no Congressman, not at all," replied the foreman. "We figure that we'd rather throw away a few bags than deprive the girls of such a patriotic gesture. However, if this bag-kissing gets too prevalent, I guess we'll have to call a halt for economical reasons."

Note: Hawkshaw Engel has saved the government a lot of money by his war plant inspections, but spends little himself. He drives his own car, sleeps in plant barracks and tourist homes, eats in cheap restaurants. He turned in an expense account of only $249.79 to the Appropriations Committee.

NORTH to DANGER by TOM GILL

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

Then Colin heard Tennant remark, "That's the lake we saw before."

Rae nodded. "It's the lake where Dove met the plane, and those tracks may mean he's down there on the island, waiting for it to come again."

Joyously Tennant lifted his rifle. "Let's go!"

But Colin stopped him. "Easy. If he wanted to lie in wait for us, that island would be the place to do it. We could get us both while we were coming across the ice. I've a better plan: You stay here and watch. I'll cut around that point and see whether he's still on that island or crossed to the other side."

But as Colin started down the slope, Tennant handed him the rifle. "You may need it for long-range work."

An hour later, when Colin climbed back on the ridge, Nate read the answer on his face—those tracks had not come out. Whoever entered the island was still there. Dove—if it was Dove—lay hiding somewhere in the dark shelter of the spruce.

Nate scanned the shore. "Suppose the plane lands on the other side of the island?"

"There isn't room. That plane has to land on this side."

"Then what's our next move?"

"Something he doesn't expect. One of us will take the rifle and cross to the island from the farther side."

Tennant picked up the rifle. "That's my job."

"Why?"

"Because I know this gun and you don't. His eyes were determined. 'Let's not argue. What shall I do when I'm on the island?'"

"Keep back in the spruce and come around to this side. Then wait. I'll be up here where I can see Dove whenever he comes out. That plane won't land until he signals, and once Dove is out on the ice, we'll have him between us. If he makes a break for this side, I'll be waiting."

"If I see him first, Dove won't ever reach your side," Tennant tied his wolf team securely to a spruce.

"We don't need you boys for this job. You might ruin it by howling at the wrong time." Waving to Colin, he called, "Here's luck to both of us!"

Alone on the ridge top, Rae laid his glasses beside him and settled himself for the vigil ahead. An hour dragged by. Every nerve tense to the breaking point, Colin began walking back and forth along the ridge, straining his eyes over the lake, then up at the sky. Once, through the glasses, he caught a brief glimpse of Tennant, creeping across the narrow neck of ice that separated the northern edge of the island from the mainland; a minute later Nate disappeared among the spruce.

Unusually Colin remembered Nate's besetting sin of impatience—better perhaps if he himself had chosen the task of cutting off Dove's retreat.

Suddenly, Colin heard a stirring in the snow, and saw the lead wolf raise his head toward the southern sky. Far off on the horizon, tiny as the merest midge, a plane was coming. Pulse pounding, Rae ran to the crest of the slope. It might only be one of Dowling's planes on reconnaissance.

With his field glasses he swept the island. If Dove were waiting down there, he too would be watching that southern sky. Slowly his senses searched the wooded shore line from east to west, following the fringe of spruce. He stopped. Something was moving along the shore!

No doubt—a half-crouching figure, just back of the screen of trees, crawling forward, almost on hands and knees—and the figure was too small to be Tennant.

Rae steadied himself against a tree. The man had stepped out into a patch of sunlight, and in that second Colin felt the ground lurch beneath him: that crouching form was Jonathan Dove. The hood of his parka had been thrown back, and in his right hand he carried a rifle.

But Dove was not looking up into the sky. Something to the left held his attention. Following the direction of Dove's gaze, Colin saw Tennant, creeping along the shore line. Dove had seen Tennant, too. With deadly deliberation the little man worked his way forward until he reached a spruce. For a time he was lost to sight, then again Colin saw him, kneeling, waiting, rifle in hand. In a few short minutes Tennant would pass before Dove's ambush. He was moving into the very muzzle of that gun!

Frantic, Colin ran to the edge of the ridge. Twice he fired his revolver, but the distance was too great; the wind, blowing toward him, drowned all sound.

Down on the island, Nate had stopped and was looking into the sky at the nearing plane. Once more Colin fired his automatic. Caught up by the contagion of Rae's unrest, the wolves were on their feet, tugging viciously at their bonds.

And now Rae stopped. A flash of memory swept over him—the old tramp of Nate's wolves for Dove. Ripping his knife from the sheath, he raced back to the team, slashed the animals loose from their harness.

"On! On!" Through an eternity Colin waited, while the lead-wolf sniffed. "Mush on, boy!"

A low growl. The wolf raised his black muzzle to the wind, then lowered it to the snow again, and now he was tearing down the slope.

Heads to the ground, tongues lolling, the others were after him, sweeping out across the ice, following that snowshoe trail.

Colin saw Nate climb across a fallen tree and Dove's rifle slowly rise.

But now the wolves had gained the island and were surging over the bank to the Nazi's ambush. Not until the two men were yards distant did Dove see them. Whirling, he half rose, and fired twice.

Colin heard a yelp of pain and saw the second wolf crumple in the snow. Once more the rifle flashed—but only once. No time for more. The pack had closed. Beneath that raging horde of fang and claw,

Dove went down under a mass of fighting, crunching bodies.

Once—only once—the Nazi shook himself free. Ghostly and terrible, he fung them from him and staggered toward the lake; then for the last time the pack closed. A hand rose in agony and fell. No move, no sound.

Then from out the center of that gray, silent pack, the lead wolf raised his massive head and, high above the north wind's moaning, Colin heard the long, triumphant howl of the kill.

It was almost sunset when Colin Rae and Nate Tennant halted close to the Indian school, and from the toboggan Nate lifted a heavy knapsack. "Here are those maps of Dove's. I'll drop by the mounties' barracks and report the plane. It'll be down in the States by now—that pilot didn't waste much time after he saw us."

"Whether they catch him or not," Colin answered, "Dove's game is up."

Tennant drew off his glove. "Well, I'll be saying good-by." He looked toward Blair's cabin. "There's not much to keep me here, now that you can take care of my trappers." He paused. "I may try the artillery this time. I need to bump off a few Japs or Nazis to make up for the ride Dove gave me."

He held out his hand. "Say good-by to Blair."

Hands clasped across the toboggan, they stood, reluctant to separate, yet knowing the end had come, while the four wolves looked on curiously.

Then from out of the sky droned the sound of a motor. "It's Blair with the mail." Tennant gave Colin's hand a final clasp. "I'll be drifting along before she lands." He pulled on his mitten. "Maybe some day we'll meet again."

A word to his team, and he moved out toward the lake while Colin looked after him.

Through torn clouds the evening sun was bathing shore and forest with the bright radiance of a winter evening. Outlined against the flaming sky, Tennant turned and waved for the last time.

Colin's throat was stiff as he raised his own hand in answer. Nate's going was the end of a chapter.

The sun dropped lower, its fading rays painting the snow purple and spreading shadow dusk.

But still Colin made no move. His eyes were raised to the plane, gleaming in the sunlit upper air. With quickened heartbeat he watched it spiraling earthward.

Out of the freedom of the upper air, Blair was coming to him. She was bringing sunlight to him, as in his days of deepest darkness she had always. Not a chapter ended—but a chapter begun.

In a steady glide her plane came toward him; the pontoons sang on the steel-hard ice and stopped not a dozen yards away. The cabin door flung open, and Blair lifted her arms.

Colin ran toward her.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, May 18

THE PRESAGE is for a day of surprising opportunity for putting in force cherished ideas and plans of a rather revolutionary or startling way of procedure, either in launching new programs or in an effort to break up old and outmoded means and measures for accomplishing old objectives.

There should be broad scope for attempting such ambitious ends, although there may be much financial hazard and uncertainty, together with an undercurrent of duplicity, trickery and other manifestations sinister and of evil purpose. Nevertheless, originality, fresh ideas, even erratic schemes or ideas may win out if they prove workable and of enduring merit, to the point of gaining public aid or approval. Dare to be original and adventurous and let novelty and innovation win.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which they may successfully put over, and attain public assistance and approval for cherished ideas of a perhaps radical, irregular and novel character, swerving far from the beaten path or the outmoded manner of doing things. It may be that such an attempt may incite opposition of a subtle, treacherous and sinister character, from those finding lucrative the work and ways of the old order. Beware entanglement and intrigue. Be alert to treachery or suspicion in domestic or romantic affairs.

A child born on this day may have much originality, ingenuity with a fresh and novel manner of improving outgrown plans and ideas, attaining the support and approval of the public or community, although beset by craft and treachery.

Dan McClain was general chairman for the first annual Policeman and Fireman's Ball held in Memorial Hall. The Highway patrol was in charge of the Circleville police department.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Abbott of Ashville, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. A dinner at the Southern Hotel, marked the occasion.

The main production schedules are being met. This does not mean that in spots output is not up to the levels desired. But Army and Navy chiefs generally are well pleased with production of aircraft and other highly important items.

What really has happened is that production of munitions and supplies has increased while the total number of workers has been declining. This has been due to such things as improvements in production, a reduction in the number of changes in design of war tools and supplies, and correction of situations in which labor was being hoarded, or in some way not properly being utilized.

Since last November, employment in munitions industries has been declining at the rate of 100,000 per month. This trend is expected to continue, although perhaps not at this high rate.

The armed services still are anxious to have Congress enact National Service legislation of some kind. But what they are said to be worried about is not so much increasingly critical labor shortages as a stampede of workers from the war plants when the end of the war is believed in sight.

To guard against such a disastrous contingency, they would like to have Congress enact legislation freezing in war jobs men who have been deferred from the draft because of such employment.

● ANNOUNCEMENT THAT A NATION-WIDE DISTRIBUTION system has been set up, with headquarters at Chicago, for dispensing the so-called "miracle drug," penicillin, is good news in the medical world.

It discloses that production now has reached the point where 10 billion units a month may be spared from military and other needs for the home front.

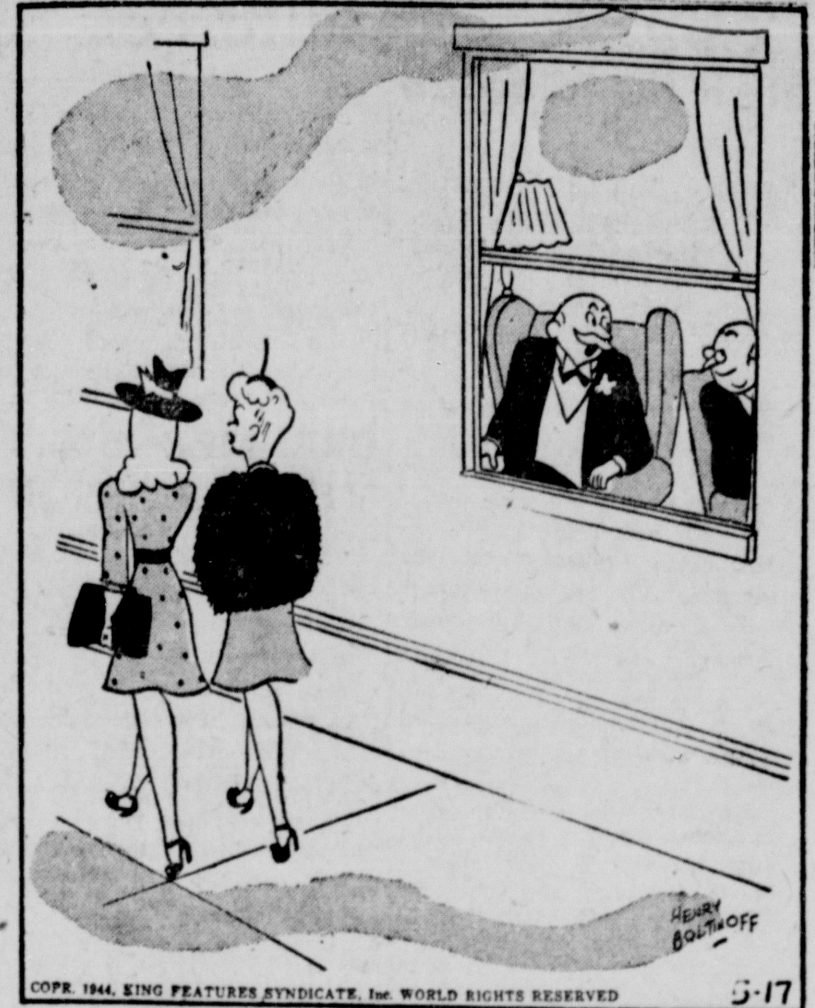

WPB revealed that production has risen from 425 million units last June to a record 25 billion units in March.

The War Production Board sees hope for wide civilian use ahead as the result of a 15 million dollar program under which 19 American and two Canadian plants have been rushed to completion. A year ago, almost all penicillin was reserved for military needs.

The drug has been found effective in treating infections which do not respond to sulfa drugs or other remedies.

DIET AND HEALTH

Water Treatment Effective Remedy

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

IN THESE days of doctor shortages I am impressed with the ignorance of and neglect of simple household remedial relief that can

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Bandage Simple to Apply

One of his remedies is the Priessnitz bandage. Its application is absurdly simple. For any pain—abdominal, chest, joint, sprains—wrap a piece of cloth out of cold water and lay it over the affected part, and cover it snugly with a larger towel pinned in place. I have seen more than once an attack of gallstones relieved this way without morphine.

For insomnia a sheet wrung out of lukewarm water laid on the bed, the patient put down on it and wrapped in it from neck to toes and then covered with blankets will often do more than half a dozen hypnotic pills.

Affusions—cold water poured from a height over the back of a patient—will relieve asthma and a dozen other ailments.

I find in an issue of "War Medicine" for December 1943, a recommendation for the "hip bath" to tone up muscular fatigue. The patient is seated in a chair, feet on a high stool, and water sprayed from a hose over the abdomen from the umbilicus down. Starting with warm water the temperature was gradually increased for five minutes and then increasingly cold water was used. The result was improvement in visual acuity, muscle balance, in blood pressure and increase in red blood cells.

The hot water bag and electric pad are also in the armamentarium of the "house mother."

Priessnitz's Discoveries

Long ago in the little Austrian village of Grafenberg a peasant boy named Vincenz Priessnitz was kicked by a horse, thrown to the ground and the heavy cart passed over his chest fracturing some ribs. The local doctor said he was crippled for life. The boy could not accept this verdict. He was wracked with pain and bent over with deformity, but his determination to get well was strong.

As he lay on his bed of pain he remembered an experience of his childhood. He had gone out in the mountain paths near his home and lay down by a spring when he saw a young roe which had been shot through the thigh drag itself into the spring. It got the wounded thigh in position so that it was entirely covered by the cold flowing water. It appeared to obtain relief. Day after day he returned to the spring and was rewarded by seeing the wounded roe return also and renew the bath. And day by day he rejoiced to see it improve and finally regain its healthy movements.

Young Vincenz had an oaken arm chair brought to his bedside and pressing his abdomen on it he gradually in successive trials forced his ribs back into place. Then he had bandages wrung out of cold water and laid over his painful muscles. His discomfort subsided and before long he was well and whole again.

He became a crusader for water treatment. He applied his remedies to his neighbors who had sprains and bruises or neuralgias. His fame grew. Patients came to him from all over Bohemia and Moravia. Finally he was able to build a magnificent hospital for

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. L.—Do face creams made with lanolin oil or vaseline feed the hair roots and therefore cause them to grow faster? Is it true that mineral oil is not so likely to feed the hair roots? What effect does freckle cream have on the skin?

Answer: Neither lanolin, vaseline, nor mineral oil rubbed on the skin affect the hair roots in any way. The only route to nourish hair roots is taking something by mouth that gets in the blood stream. Hair roots do not utilize fats anyway. What they need is keratin.

G. B.—How does an inactive thyroid affect a child's general health? Is there a machine to find out if the ductless glands of the body are working?

Answer: An inactive thyroid produces overweight and a sluggish mentality. Yes, a machine called the basal metabolism machine measures the activity of the ductless glands.

All this means a Holy Crusade as surely as did the international Crusades that once fought to rescue the Holy Land from the heathens.

REBUILDING A CONTINENT

THERE will be an immense amount of construction work to be done in Europe after the war. Americans will probably be in it up to their ears. With so many million homes, stores and factories destroyed, so many million miles of roads ruined, it should be a paradise for contractors. Architects, construction workers, carpenters, masons and so on, will be required on an unprecedented scale.

Very likely thousands of Americans, with ancestral roots in western and southern Europe, carried back by this military invasion, will want to stay there when the war is over and help rebuild the "old country." They will carry with them American ideas and methods. The resultant mingling of materials and ideas may be very interesting.

The Nazis sometimes tell the truth. Thus Robert Ley, leader of the German Labor Front and Hitler's handy-man, says truly, "Our enemies may copy everything and anything from us, but they cannot copy Hitler." One thing to be thankful for!

What a world, when everybody's so busy passing the ammunition that you can't get a clock fixed any more!

If we let the Russians do all the fighting, they might decide to let us do all the working.

HIGH-POWERED PUBLICITY

WASHINGTON—There hasn't been so much published about it, but an efficient high-geared publicity machine is now functioning at Republican headquarters. Some of the news experts have been on the payroll for quite a while and are all set to go for the Republican nominee the minute the final gong sounds at Chicago.

Here is the recollage of GOP public relations sharks and their stipends:

James P. Salvage, overall GOP publicity boss, salary $1,211 per month (taxes deducted); Robert Pritchard, publicity expert, $459.44 to prepare radio script; W. J. Donald, a perennial fixture at Republican headquarters, draws $730.90 (taxes deducted). Donald is a self-appointed defender of the U. S. Constitution and is kept on the payrolls despite the long series of Republican defeats. His principal duties consist of a daily reading of the Congressional Record and digesting same.

Carlisle Barger, erstwhile critic of Herbert Hoover, now gets $705.46 (taxes deducted) to raise the party he once criticized.

Percy L. Graves, Jr., another "publicity expert," draws $497.88 (taxes deducted). Floyd E. McCaffree, chief GOP researcher, gets $497.88 (taxes deducted) per month to collect speeches made by Roosevelt and show how the President has failed to keep his promises.

Walter F. Brittan, political expert, gets $1,238.72 (taxes deducted) from the Republican party.

G. Glenn Saxon, an Alf Landon brain-truster, is back again and recently charged the GOP $1,104.67 for "services and expenses."

GOOD LUCK IN COLOR

Congressional cloakrooms are chuckling over the latest war plant tour of chunky, indefatigable Congressman Albert Engel of Michigan, Capitol Hill's one-man detective agency.

While inspecting an Alabama bag-loading plant, Engel was told of the extreme care taken to prevent staining of the white linen bags which are filled with powder for howitzer shells. Any bags that are stained while being filled are emptied and thrown away, plant officials reported, because of the possibility of a chemical reaction which might explode the powder.

"We had a big mystery around here several months ago," a plant foreman related by way of illustration. "A number of red stains were found on bags and we couldn't figure out what caused them. Finally, after a chemical analysis of a discarded bag, we discovered to our amazement that it had been stained by lipstick."

"Yes, sir, some of our girl employees had been giving those bags of shell powder a good-luck kiss and saying, 'now, get me a Jap.'"

"Did you make the girls stop?" grinned Engel.

"Oh, no Congressman, not at all," replied the foreman. "We figure that we'd rather throw away a few bags than deprive the girls of such a patriotic gesture. However, if this bag-kissing gets too prevalent, I guess we'll have to call a halt for economical reasons."

Note: Hawkshaw Engel has saved the government a lot of money by his war plant inspections, but spends little himself. He drives his own car, sleeps in plant barracks and tourist homes, eats in cheap restaurants. He turned in an expense account of only $249.79 to the Appropriation Committee.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

Then Colin heard Tennant remark, "That's the lake we saw before."

Rae nodded. "It's the lake where Dove met the plane, and those tracks may mean he's down there on the island, waiting for it to come again."

"Joyously Tennant lifted his rifle. 'Let's go!'"

But Colin stopped him. "Easy. If he wanted to lie in wait for us, that island would be the place to do it. Dove could get us both while we were coming across the ice. I've a better plan: You stay here and watch. I'll cut around that point and see whether he's still on that island or crossed to the other side."

But as Colin started down the slope, Tennant handed him the rifle. "You may need it for long-range work."

An hour later, when Colin climbed back on the ridge, Nate read the answer on his face—those tracks had not come out. Whoever entered the island was still there. Dove—if it was Dove—lay hiding somewhere in the dark shelter of the spruce.

Nate scanned the shore. "Suppose the plane lands on the other side of the island?"

"There isn't room. That plane has to land on this side."

"Then what's our next move?"

"Something he doesn't expect. One of us will take the rifle and cross to the island from the farther side."

Tennant picked up the rifle. "That's my job."

"Why?"

"Because I know this gun and you don't." His eyes were determined. "Let's not argue. What shall I do when I'm on the island?"

"Keep back in the spruce and come around to this side. Then wait. I'll be up here where I can see Dove whenever he comes out. That plane won't land until he signals, and once Dove is out on the ice, we'll have him between us. If he makes a break for this side, I'll be waiting."

"If I see him first, Dove won't ever reach your side." Tennant tied his wolf team securely to a spruce. "We don't need you boys for this job. You might ruin it by howling at the wrong time." Waving to Colin, he called, "Here's the luck to both of us!"

Alone on the ridge top, Rae laid his glasses beside him and settled himself for the vigil ahead. An hour dragged by. Every nerve tense to the breaking point, Colin began walking back and forth along the ridge, straining his eyes out over the lake, then up at the sky. Once, through the glasses, he caught a brief glimpse of Tennant, creeping across the narrow neck of ice that separated the northern edge of the island from the mainland; a minute later Nate disappeared among the spruce.

Unusually Colin remembered Nate's besetting sin of impatience—better perhaps if he himself had chosen the task of cutting off Dove's retreat.

Suddenly, Colin heard a stirring in the snow, and saw the lead wolf raise his head toward the southern sky. Far off on the horizon, tiny as the merest midge, a plane was coming. Pulse pounding, Rae ran to the crest of the slope. It might only be one of Dowling's planes on reconnaissance.

With his field glasses he swept the island. If Dove were waiting down there, he too would be watching that southern sky. Slowly his glasses searched the wooded shore line from east to west, following the fringe of spruce. He stopped. Something was moving along the shore!

No doubt—a half-crouching figure, just back of the screen of trees, crawling forward, almost on hands and knees—and the figure was too small to be Tennant.

Rae steadied himself against a tree. The man had stepped out into a patch of sunlight, and in that second Colin felt the ground lurch beneath him: that crouching form was Jonathan Dove. The hood of his parka had been thrown back, and in his right hand he carried a rifle.

But Dove was not looking up into the sky. Something to the left held his attention. Following the direction of Dove's gaze, Colin saw Tennant, creeping along the shore line.

Dove had seen Tennant, too. With deadly deliberation the little man worked his way forward until he reached a spruce. For a time he was lost to sight, then again Colin saw him, kneeling, waiting, rifle in hand. In a few short minutes Tennant would pass before Dove's ambush. He was moving into the very muzzle of that gun!

Frankie, Colin ran to the edge of the ridge. Twice he fired his revolver, but the distance was too great; the wind, blowing toward him, drowned all sound.

Down on the island, Nate had stopped and was looking into the sky at the nearing plane. Once more Colin fired his automatic. Caught up by the contagion of Rae's unrest, the wolves were on their feet, tugging viciously at their bonds.

And now Rae stopped. A flash of memory swept over him—the old hatred of Nate's wolves for Dove. Ripping his knife from the sheath, he raced back to the team, slashed the animals loose from their harness.

"On! On!" Through an eternity Colin waited, while the lead wolf sniffed. "Mush on, boy!"

A low growl. The wolf raised his black muzzle to the wind, then lowered it to the snow again, and now he was tearing down the slope.

Heads to the ground, tongues lolling, the others were after him, sweeping out across the ice, following that snowshoe trail.

Colin saw Nate climb across a fallen tree and Dove's rifle slowly rise.

But now the wolves had gained the island and were surging up over the bank to the Nazi's ambush. Not until they were scant yards distant did Dove see them. Whirling, he half rose, and fired twice.

Colin heard a yelp of pain and saw the second wolf crumple in the snow. One more the rifle flashed—but only once. No time for more. The pack had closed. Beneath that raging horde of fang and claw,

Dove went down under a mass of fighting, crunching bodies. Once—only once—the Nazi shook himself free. Ghostly and terrible, he flung them from him and staggered toward the lake; then for the last time the pack closed. A hand rose in agony and fell. No move, no sound.

Then from out the center of that gray, silent pack, the lead wolf raised his massive head and, high above the north wind's moaning, Colin heard the long, triumphant howl of the kill.

It was almost sunset when Colin Rae and Nate Tennant halted close to the Indian school, and from the toboggan Nate lifted a heavy knapsack. "Here are those maps of Dove's. I'll drop by the mounties' barracks and report the plane. It'll be down in the States by now—that pilot didn't waste much time after he saw us."

"Whether they catch him or not," Colin answered, "Dove's game is up."

Tennant drew off his glove. "Well, I'll be saying good-by." He looked toward Blair's cabin. "There's not much to keep me here, now that you can take care of my trappers." He paused. "I may try the artillery this time. I need to bump off a few Japs or Nazis to make up for the ride Dove gave me." He held out his hand. "Say good-by to Blair."

Hands clasped across the toboggan, they stood, reluctant to separate, yet knowing the end had come, while the four wolves looked on curiously.

Then from out of the sky droned the sound of a motor. "It's Blair with the mail," Tennant gave Colin's hand a final clasp. "I'll be drifting along before she lands." He pulled on his mitten. "Maybe some day we'll meet again."

A word to his team, and he moved out toward the lake while Colin looked after him.

Through torn clouds the evening sun was bathing shore and forest with the bright radiance of a winter evening. Outlined against the flaming sky, Tennant turned and waved for the last time.

Colin's throat was stiff as he raised his own hand in answer. Nate's going was the end of a chapter.

The sun dropped lower, its fading rays painting the snow purple and spreading shadowy dusk.

But still Colin made no move. His eyes were raised to the plane, gleaming in the sunlit upper air. With quickened heartbeat he watched it spiraling earthward.

Out of the freedom of the upper air, Blair was coming to him. She was bringing sunlight to him, as in his days of deepest darkness she had always. Not a chapter ended—but a chapter begun.

In a steady glide her plane came toward him; the pontoons sang on the steel-hard ice and stopped not a dozen yards away. The cabin door flung open, and Blair lifted her arms.

Colin ran toward her.

For Thursday, May 18

THE PRESAGE is for a day of surprising opportunity for putting in force cherished ideas and plans of a rather revolutionary or startling way of procedure, either in launching new programs or in an effort to break up old and outmoded means and measures for accomplishing old objectives.

There should be broad scope for attempting such ambitious ends, although there may be much financial hazard and uncertainty, together with an undercurrent of duplicity, trickery and other manifestations sinister and of evil purpose. Nevertheless, originality, fresh ideas, even erratic schemes or ideas may win out if they prove workable and of enduring merit, to the point of gaining public aid or approval. Dare to be original and adventurous and let novelty and innovation win.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which they may successfully put over, and attain public assistance and approval for cherished ideas of a perhaps radical, irregular and novel character, swerving far from the beaten path or the outmoded manner of doing things. It may be that such an attempt may incite opposition of a subtle, treacherous and sinister character, from those finding lucrative the work and ways of the old order. Beware entanglement and intrigue. Be alert to treachery or suspicion in domestic or romantic affairs.

A child born on this day may have much originality, ingenuity, with a fresh and novel manner of improving outgrown plans and ideas, attaining the support and approval of the public or community, although beset by craft and treachery.

The house mother who has to treat the patient wrings her hands and deplores the emergency situation, the lack of doctors, the hard-heartedness of the narcotic laws and the patient goes on suffering. And all the time if she has a sink with running water or a well and a stove and a few towels she could give relief such as rich people in the best of times want miles and spent large fees to obtain.

Priessnitz's Discoveries

Long ago in the little Austrian village of Grafenberg a peasant boy named Vincens Priessnitz was kicked by a horse, thrown to the ground and the heavy cart passed over his chest fracturing some ribs. The local doctor said he was crippled for life. The boy could not accept this verdict. He was wracked with pain and bent over with deformity, but his determination to get well was strong.

As he lay on his bed of pain he remembered an experience of his childhood. He had gone out in the mountain paths near his home and lay down by a spring when he saw a young roe which had been shot through the thigh drag itself into the spring. It got the wounded thigh in position so that it was entirely covered by the cold flowing water. It appeared to obtain relief. Day after day he returned to the spring and was rewarded by seeing the wounded roe return also and renew the bath. And day by day he rejoiced to see it improve and finally regain its healthy movements.

Young Vincens had an oaken arm chair brought to his bedside and pressing his abdomen on it he gradually in successive trials forced his ribs back into place. Then he had bandages wrung out of cold water and laid over his painful muscles. His discomfort subsided and before long he was well and whole again.

He became a crusader for water treatment. He applied his remedies to his neighbors who had sprains and bruises or neuralgias. His fame grew. Patients came to him from all over Bohemia and Moravia. Finally he was able to build a magnificent hospital for

Foresee Japanese Peace
Overtures After Invasion

Armed Service Chiefs Find
War Production Satisfactory

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Peace overtures by Japan are considered a definite possibility once Allied forces establish a beachhead in western Europe. And that possibility has high-ranking Navy men plenty worried. They want to crush Japan thoroughly this time so that she cannot stage a comeback in another 20 years or so.

Some war experts believe Japan will give up much of her stolen empire if she is allowed to keep part of China, all of Manchuria and a few other outposts which yield vital materials.

Top-ranking Navy men hope that the American public will turn a deaf ear to all Jap peace moves. They just do not trust Japan and there is plenty in the enemy's record to justify this distrust.

The real test of Japan's willingness to continue fighting will come sometime this year when American bombers finally begin a systematic bombing of her most important cities.

Once the Allies can switch most of their naval strength from the Atlantic and the Mediterranean to the Far East, Japan will be cut off from raw materials and supplies in the East Indies. When those islands are useless to her, she undoubtedly will be glad to trade them to the Allies for another breathing spell.

HEADS OF THE ARMED SERVICES are reported to be generally satisfied with the present level of war production, notwithstanding announcements from time to time indicating that output is falling behind because of a critical manpower shortage.

Authoritative government sources say that, considered as a whole, the main production schedules are being met. This does not mean that in spots output is not up to the levels desired. But Army and Navy chiefs generally are well pleased with production of aircraft and other highly important items.

What really has happened is that production of munitions and supplies has increased while the total number of workers has been declining. This has been due to such things as improvements in production, a reduction in the number of changes in design of war tools and supplies, and correction of situations in which labor was being hoarded, or in some way was not properly being utilized.

Since last November, employment in munitions industries has been declining at the rate of 100,000 per month. This trend is expected to continue, although perhaps not at this high rate.

The armed services still are anxious to have Congress enact National Service legislation of some kind. But what they are said to be

Country Club Members
Welcome Summer Season

Dinner Party
Attended By 82
Men, Women

In a gay and carefree evening of games members of the Pickaway Country club welcomed the opening of the Summer season Wednesday at a dinner party at the club home. Eighty-two members and prospective members gathered there for the affair.

An abundance of American flags and masses of colorful irises were used as background decorations for the large porch where an excellent roast beef dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. at small tables.

Mr. and Mrs. James I. Smith, Jr., hosts for the month of May, were assisted in serving the excellent meal by Mrs. Norbert Cochran and Mrs. Edmund Landis.

During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Smith and members of the house committee discussed the next social activity of the club and tentative plans were made for another dinner to be served Memorial Day at the club.

Members of the house committee are Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Ned Groom, Mrs. Frank J. Bennett and Mrs. E. S. Roper. Each month new hostesses will be named.

After the dinner hour, the guests participated in the many games arranged for their pleasure.

Nebraska Grange

About 85 members and visitors attended the regular meeting of Nebraska grange No. 64 in the grange hall and witnessed the excellent work of the degree team of Star Grange of Monroe township as it exemplified the third and fourth degrees for a class of nine candidates. The work was done in a very efficient manner and was greatly appreciated by the grange group.

W. O. Riegel, worthy master of Nebraska, was in the chair for the business hour and announced that the newly organized degree team of the grange would confer first and second degrees for the Star grange in the near future. C. M. Reid is worthy master of Star grange.

Refreshments concluded the pleasant affair.

Young-Buchwalter Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lyon Buchwalter of Appethorpe Farm, near Hillsville have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Louise Buchwalter to Mr. Hobart Paul Young, Jr., of Chicago, Ill. The marriage will take place Saturday, June 3, at 5:30 p. m. at St. Paul's church, Chillicothe.

Mr. Young is the son of Mrs. Hobart Paul Young of Winnetka, Ill.

Girl Scouts Register For Camp

Members of the Girl Scout Camp committee will meet at Memorial hall Saturday, May 20, from 3 until 5 p. m. to give information concerning Girl Scout camping for the Summer. Registration fees may be paid at this time if any scout wishes to register before her troop has its Camp Rally.

Camping the Girl Scout way has given girls a chance to put ideals into practice, to have fun living in an out-of-doors-community. Each troop in the county is setting a special date before the end of the month for a Camp Rally when the parents will be given the information concerning various camps and plans will be made.

Honored At Dinner

Franklin M. Glitt, seaman 2/c, who is spending his boot leave with his wife, Mrs. Bernice Glitt, 49 1/2 South Hickory street, Chillicothe, was honored Wednesday at a cooperative dinner entertained by his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Hoadley Downing, of near Harrisburg.

Present for the family affair were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glitt and children, Billy, Jane and Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Glitt and children, Betty and Douglas, Howard Glitt of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Glitt, Chillicothe, and Mr. and Mrs. Downing and son.

Mrs. Beaty Honored

Honoring Mrs. Arthur Beaty (Elizabeth Huston), a recent bride, the teachers of the elementary grades of Jackson township school entertained at a delightful luncheon Wednesday at the Pickaway Arms. Mrs. Beaty was presented a gift by her co-workers.

Present for the occasion were: Mrs. Beaty, Mrs. Virgil M. Cress, Mrs. Curtis Wertman, Mrs. Harold Bower, Mrs. A. D. Blackburn and Miss Mary Karshner.

Matrix Table

Mrs. Fannie Riggins, Miss Jeanette Reichelderfer and Miss Alice Ada May were Circleville guests Wednesday at the annual Matrix Table of Theta Sigma Phi Sorority at the Neil House, Columbus. About 800 were present for the affair.

Muna Lee, poet and author, guest speaker of the evening, used as her subject, "A North American Looks South." Judging from her talk, the audience decided that one of the best ways to insure international solidarity at the conclusion of the present world conflict would be to have Muna Lee serve as an envoy. Miss Lee has hit upon one of the most direct methods of understanding peoples of other nations, namely through knowledge of them by the written and spoken word.

Preceding the dinner, Miss Lee was initiated in the Columbus Alumnae Chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism sorority.

Walnut Needle Club

Nine members of the Walnut Needle club were delightfully entertained Wednesday by Mrs. Charles Forquer of Monroe township who invited them for the afternoon at Mrs. Marion's Party home. An excellent lunch was served at the close of the afternoon of informal visiting, sewing for the Red Cross being omitted because of lack of materials.

The June session will be at the home of Mrs. Noah Leist, Columbus.

Philathea Club

Philathea club of the United Brethren church held its May session at the home of Mrs. Robert Dick, East Franklin street, with a delightful program based on the topic "Mother." Miss Polly Jane

Kerns planned the entertainment, the meeting being opened with a prayer by Miss Lucille Kirkwood, followed by scripture reading by Mrs. Dick.

Two poems were presented, Miss Mary Ellen Kirkpatrick reading, "Mother," and Miss Lucille May, "Somebody's Mother." A music contest was enjoyed. Lieutenant Marcellette Kerr, a former member of the class, was a guest for the evening. Lieut. Kerr is stationed in North Carolina.

Mrs. Dick served delicious refreshments.

Art Sewing Club

Nine members of the Art Sewing club enjoyed a delightful afternoon Wednesday when Mrs. Fred Newhouse entertained at her home on East Main street. The home was a colorful setting for the affair, many of the colorful arrangements of Spring flowers being gifts of the club members. Mrs. Leach of Mt. Sterling and Miss Marjorie Dresbach of Pickaway township were guests for the meeting.

Mrs. Newhouse concluded the informal afternoon with an excellent lunch.

Union Guild

About 20 members of the Union Guild met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Bryan Downs, Jackson township, with Mrs. Clarence Bidwell as assisting hostess. Mrs. George Fischer, president, was in charge of the session and the devotional service was led by Mrs. Walter Bumgarner. Mrs. Bumgarner read an article on the Fourth Commandment and led the group in repeating the Lord's Prayer.

Roll call in charge of Mrs. Ol and Schooley, was answered with Bible verses. Readings by Mrs. Roy Newlon and Mrs. Leo Hodgson, group singing and the benediction completed the program. The members sewed on Buddy Bags for patients at Fletcher General hospital, Cambridge.

Refreshments were served during the closing social hour.

The June session will be at the home of Mrs. Tom Wardell, Wayne township, with Mrs. Wayne Fee as assisting hostess.

Group B

Group B of the Presbyterian Women's association will meet Friday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Frank J. Bennett, South Court street.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

Successful deep fat frying depends a great deal upon the temperature of the fat when the food is put into it. Heat the fat slowly until it commences to smoke, then regulate the heat to maintain the right temperature. A deep fat thermometer which clips onto the side of the kettle is the most accurate indicator. If you have no thermometer, you can use the bread test. Count the seconds required to brown a one-inch cube of bread. If the bread browns in 60 seconds the temperature is about 375 degrees F.; if it is 400 degrees F. when it browns in 20 seconds.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FAS-TEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FAS-TEETH at any drug store.

Today's
VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Green Foods for Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

SPINACH, the better known of the "greens," grows best in spring and autumn. It thrives under cool, moist conditions but quickly goes to seed in dry, hot weather. Spinach is very sensitive to acid soil and should be grown only on nearly neutral soil. If in doubt about the condition of the soil, the Victory gardener can apply a few pounds of lime to the portion of the garden in which spinach is to be planted.

Bloodsade Long-Standing, Nobel and Viking are outstanding varieties of spinach. The latter variety is easily washed clean of sand or grit.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, King of Denmark is a worthwhile variety, since it is slower than most to go to seed. This variety forms quite large tufts or rosettes which are compact and low growing. The numerous leaves are extra large and a glossy, dark green in color. The Victory gardener may also wish to experiment this year with a new vegetable green called the Tampa, which is also shown in the Garden-Graph. It is claimed that Tampa grows well in hot weather and will keep on producing all through the summer. The leaves are cooked in the same manner as spinach, except that it only requires some five minutes of cooking. Tender leaves from this plant can be finely cut or shredded for salad purposes.

Country Club Members Welcome Summer Season

Dinner Party Attended By 82 Men, Women

In a gay and carefree evening of games members of the Pickaway Country club welcomed the opening of the summer season Wednesday at a dinner party at the club home. Eighty-two members and prospective members gathered there for the affair.

An abundance of American flags and masses of colorful iris were used as background decorations for the large porch where an excellent roast beef dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. at small tables.

Mr. and Mrs. James I. Smith, Jr., hosts for the month of May, were assisted in serving the excellent meal by Mrs. Norbert Cochran and Mrs. Edmund Landis. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Smith and members of the house committee discussed the next social activity of the club and tentative plans were made for another dinner to be served Memorial Day at the club.

Members of the house committee are Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Ned Groom, Mrs. Frank J. Bennett and Mrs. E. S. Roper. Each month new hostesses will be named.

After the dinner hour, the guests participated in the many games arranged for their pleasure.

Nebraska Grange

About 85 members and visitors attended the regular meeting of Nebraska grange No. 64 in the grange hall and witnessed the excellent work of the degree team of Star Grange of Monroe township as it exemplified the third and fourth degrees for a class of nine candidates. The work was done in a very efficient manner and was greatly appreciated by the grange group.

W. O. Riegel, worthy master of Nebraska, was in the chair for the business hour and announced that the newly organized degree team of the grange would confer first and second degrees for the Star grange in the near future. C. M. Reid is worthy master of Star grange.

Refreshments concluded the pleasant affair.

Young-Buchwalter Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lyon Buchwalter of Appethorpe Farm, near Hallsville have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Louise Buchwalter to Mr. Hobart Paul Young, Jr., of Chicago, Ill. The marriage will take place Saturday, June 3, at 5:30 p. m. at St. Paul's church, Chillicothe.

Mr. Young is the son of Mrs. Hobart Paul Young of Winnetka, Ill.

Girl Scouts Register For Camp

Members of the Girl Scout Camp committee will meet at Memorial hall Saturday, May 20, from 3 until 5 p. m. to give information concerning Girl Scout camping for the summer. Registration fees may be paid at this time if any scout wishes to register before her troop has its Camp Rally.

Camping the Girl Scout way has given girls a chance to put ideals into practice, to have fun living in an out-of-doors-community. Each troop in the county is setting a special date before the end of the month for a Camp Rally when the parents will be given the information concerning various camps and plans will be made.

Honored At Dinner

Franklin M. Glitt, seaman 2/c, who is spending his boot leave with his wife, Mrs. Bernice Glitt, 49½ South Hickory street, Chillicothe, was honored Wednesday at a cooperative dinner entertained by his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Hoadley Downing, of near Harrisburg.

Present for the family affair were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glitt and children, Billy, Jane and Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Glitt and children, Betty and Douglas, Howard Glitt of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Glitt, Chillicothe, and Mr. and Mrs. Downing and son.

Mrs. Beatty Honored

Honoring Mrs. Arthur Beatty (Elizabeth Huston), a recent bride, the teachers of the elementary grades of Jackson township social entertained at a delightful luncheon Wednesday at the Pickaway Arms. Mrs. Beatty was presented a gift by her co-workers.

Present for the occasion were: Mrs. Beatty, Mrs. Virgil M. Cress, Mrs. Curtis Wertman, Mrs. Harold Bower, Mrs. A. D. Blackburn and Miss Mary Karshner.

Matrix Table

Mrs. Fannie Riggins, Miss Jeanette Reichelderfer and Miss Alice Ada May were Circleville guests Wednesday at the annual Matrix Table of Theta Sigma Phi Sorority at the Neil House, Columbus. About 800 were present for the affair.

Muna Lee, poet and author, guest speaker of the evening, used as her subject, "A North American Looks South." Judging from her talk, the audience decided that one of the best ways to insure international solidarity at the conclusion of the present world conflict would be to have Muna Lee serve as an envoy. Miss Lee has hit upon one of the most direct methods of understanding peoples of other nations, namely through knowledge of them by the written and spoken word.

Preceding the dinner, Miss Lee was initiated in the Columbus Alumnae Chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism sorority.

Walnut Needle Club

Nine members of the Walnut Needle club were delightfully entertained Wednesday by Mrs. Charles Forquer of Monroe township who invited them for the afternoon at Mrs. Marion's Party home. An excellent lunch was served at the close of the afternoon of informal visiting, sewing for the Red Cross being omitted because of lack of materials.

The June session will be at the home of Mrs. Noah Leist, Columbus.

Philathea Club

Philathea club of the United Brethren church held its May session at the home of Mrs. Robert Dick, East Franklin street, with a delightful program based on the topic "Mother." Miss Polly Jane

'Phone Marriage'

ANOTHER marriage by proxy is performed by Municipal Court Judge Nathan R. Margold in Washington, D. C., as Marine Sgt. Helen Hill prepares to say her "I will" into the phone. Bridegroom at the "wedding" was First Sgt. Jack Barnett Bowman, 23, Army Air Forces, who answered from Hawaii. (International)

Kerns planned the entertainment, the meeting being opened with a prayer by Miss Lucille Kirkwood, followed by scripture reading by Mrs. Dick.

Two poems were presented, Miss Mary Ellen Kirkpatrick reading, "Mother," and Miss Lucile May, "Somebody's Mother." A music contest was enjoyed. Lieutenant Marcellette Kerr, a former member of the class, was a guest for the evening. Lieut. Kerr is stationed in North Carolina.

Mrs. Dick served delicious refreshments.

Art Sewing Club

Nine members of the Art Sewing club enjoyed a delightful afternoon Wednesday when Mrs. Fred Newhouse entertained at her home on East Main street. The home was a colorful setting for the affair, many of the colorful arrangements of Spring flowers being gifts of the club members. Mrs. Leach of Mt. Sterling and Miss Marjorie Dresbach of Pickaway township were guests for the meeting.

Mrs. Newhouse concluded the informal afternoon with an excellent lunch.

Union Guild

About 20 members of the Union Guild met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Bryan Downs, Jackson township, with Mrs. Clarence Bidwell as assisting hostess. Mrs. George Fischer, president, was in charge of the session and the devotional service was led by Mrs. Walter Bumgarner. Mrs. Bumgarner read an article on the Fourth Commandment and led the group in repeating the Lord's Prayer.

Roll call in charge of Mrs. Olaf and Schooley, was answered with Bible verses. Readings by Mrs. Roy Newton and Mrs. Leo Hodgson, group singing and the benediction completed the program. The members sewed on Buddy Bags for patients at Fletcher General hospital, Cambridge.

Refreshments were served during the closing social hour. The June session will be at the home of Mrs. Tom Wardell, Wayne township, with Mrs. Wayne Fee as assisting hostess.

Group B

Group B of the Presbyterian Women's association will meet Friday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Frank J. Bennett, South Court street.

Quill Club

Quill Club, literary society of Ohio university, Athens, has announced that Charlotte Schaal, Laureville, has been elected to serve as scribe and publicity director for the 1944-45 school year. Miss Schaal is a junior enrolled in the School of Journalism.

Personals

"The Authority on Authorities"

SUIT LENGTHS SOUGHT

A SUIT overall of one more than necessary to overcall the opponent is used by many players to indicate the likelihood of a two-suit, possibly a formidable one-suit, and to imply a one-time force on the partner, just as an in-formative or takeout double.

player would know that the spade suit is the correct response to a double, rather than hearts. It is equally the correct bid when South makes the kind of jump which he did here, just one level higher than enough, to overcall the opponents' bid. If that kind of jump is being used as a sure one-time force, the answers to it should be just the same as to a double, except when the partner raises the bid used by the jumper.

The bid, as would a double, says in effect: "I'll furnish the high cards and you supply the suit length."

It surely made a great difference here. When South knew his partner had enough spades for a slam, which he invited. North accepted the invitation because of his diamond blank and his two bids in response, there was hardly any sound ground to go higher than game. Of course the slam was made, in fact a grand slam.

Notice what a difference North's choice of suits made after hearing his partner's jump in clubs. Those were two of the bidding sequences at tables in a duplicate game. Some of the other South players used a double of the 1-Diamond bid to indicate their strength, and in each of those cases North answered with spades, so that hearts could be shown later without embarrassment, if necessary to show them.

JONES IN FRACAS

Allan Jones is now the center of another motion picture-radio fracas. Universal Pictures demands that he return to Hollywood immediately to star in a new picture. Jones is now starring on his own radio show Wednesdays and on Broadway Matinee Thursdays. He will not take these shows to Hollywood until the Fall. His contention is that the picture company could have used him before he signed radio contracts and that it was his radio work which brought him back into favor with them. And he has a good point there!

Committee Appointed To

Drinking Places

STATE ACTION SOUGHT

Closing Recommended For Establishments Causing Local Trouble

Official anger flared Wednesday night against law-breaking drinking establishments in the city and resulted in appointment of a committee of councilmen to study the local situation with an eye toward likely closing of flagrant violators.

George Crites brought the matter before city council when he declared that "ten years ago we had a good, law-abiding city. Now we have a Little Chicago. Conditions in the city at night, particularly Saturday night, are a disgusting disgrace. Drunks and prostitutes roam the streets, children are in drinking establishments and on the streets until all hours."

Mr. Crites cited the fact that the police department is undermanned and unable to cope with the situation. He suggested that council inject itself into the situation, that a committee be appointed to study the condition and that the committee carry its findings before the state liquor commission together with a demand for action.

Favors Early Hours
Councilman Reid called attention to the fact that council frequently had tried to pass a midnight closing ordinance, but without result. He said that he was in favor of early closing and said that some local establishments should be closed forever.

Councilman Mason spoke for correction, but said that the law-abiding drinking place proprietors should not be penalized because of the improper conduct of others. "If the majority of our drinking places can be run respectably then they all can be run respectably and if they are not then I am in favor of closing them," he declared.

Councilman Cook said that he felt the same as Mr. Crites, "and not just lately either." "A more aggressive attitude on the part of police might help," he said.

ORDINANCES FOR CASH PASSED BY CITY COUNCIL

Three ordinances were passed by city council Wednesday evening, all of them dealing with small sums of money. One provided an incidental fund of $75 for Berger hospital, another provides payment of $6.85 to Clarissa Talbot for damage to her automobile when she struck a street cave-in, and one authorizing expenditure of $295 for purchase of a police cruiser. The cruiser already has been bought and is in use. Sale of the old police cruiser also was authorized.

J. W. Greenlee presented a petition to council asking that his wage be increased from $80 to $135 a month. The petition was referred to committee.

An ordinance providing payment of $300 to Miller Fissell for use of personal equipment by the city police department was read for the second time.

Councilman Boyd Horn called council's attention to the fact that residents of South Pickaway street are clamoring for sanitary sewer service. The matter was referred to committee.

President John Goeller presided at the council meeting after absence from two sessions due to a western business trip. Councilman Troy White was absent from the meeting.

Carl S. Mader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mader of Pinckney street, has notified his parents that he is in the hospital at Camp Chaffee, Ark., recovering from a fractured elbow, although he did not state the cause of the injury.

Young Mader, who has been in the army for the last 18 months, has been at Camp Chaffee for seven weeks on maneuvers.

His address is: Pvt. Carl S. Mader, ASN 35508650, Hdq. Btry, 663rd F. A. B. N., Camp Chaffee, Arkansas.

disciplinary action should be taken by the state liquor commission and that evidence warranting action should be placed before that body. "It is not hard to get," he declared. He also spoke against penalizing all businesses because of the law infractions of a few.

President Goeller named on the committee of investigation Councilmen Crites, Anderson and Cook and Safety Director Thurman Miller. The committee is to work with Police Chief McCrady in a survey of past and present conduct of drinking establishments and members promised early correction of conditions in the city.

CARL S. MADER SUFFERS BROKEN ARM IN ARMY

Carl S. Mader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mader of Pinckney street, has notified his parents that he is in the hospital at Camp Chaffee, Ark., recovering from a fractured elbow, although he did not state the cause of the injury.

Young Mader, who has been in the army for the last 18 months, has been at Camp Chaffee for seven weeks on maneuvers.

His address is: Pvt. Carl S. Mader, ASN 35508650, Hdq. Btry, 663rd F. A. B. N., Camp Chaffee, Arkansas.

disciplinary action should be taken by the state liquor commission and that evidence warranting action should be placed before that body. "It is not hard to get," he declared. He also spoke against penalizing all businesses because of the law infractions of a few.

President Goeller named on the committee of investigation Councilman Crites, Anderson and Cook and Safety Director Thurman Miller. The committee is to work with Police Chief McCrady in a survey of past and present conduct of drinking establishments and members promised early correction of conditions in the city.
